

Find Wreckage Of Freighter, Hunt for Crew

Two Rescue Ships Hoping to Sight Lifeboats

37 ARE MISSING

British Ship Apparently Lost on Stormy North Atlantic

Chatham, Mass.—(7)—Apparently convinced the British freighter Maria de Larrinaga had foundered, rescue vessels today searched the stormy north Atlantic for life boats in the hope of finding her crew of 37 alive.

Late messages received by the Radiomarine station here advised that two of the rescue ships were steaming through wreckage-strewn waters, about 1,200 miles east of New York, from which position the De Larrinaga yesterday reported she was sinking.

The Cunard-White Star liner Aurania, after describing wreckage, added she "still had hope we will sight lifeboats."

The Holland American liner Veendam reported that she had come upon floating ladders and a table top, but had seen no boats.

Both messages were relayed to the Radiomarine station by the American steamer Seacomb, which was participating in the search.

Finds No Wreckage

The master of the S. S. Clintonia next reported she had reached the spot but had caught "no sign of steamer or wreckage."

A previous message from the Aurania read:

"Sighted wreckage, hatch covers and oars. Now steering course, 130, speed 9 knots.

The vessel gave the position as latitude 42°27' north and longitude 45°49' west. In sending her distress call the freighter yesterday gave her position as 42°15' north, 46°50' west, about 1,200 miles east of New York.

Officials at the station here said: "That seems to indicate the freighter has gone down."

Meanwhile, in mid-forenoon a telegraph company advised persons attempting to reach the De Larrinaga "ship unanswerable calls. Will continue calling and deliver soon as possible."

Previously the Holland-American vessel Veendam reported it had reached the scene but could find no trace of the freighter or its crew of 37. The De Larrinaga's radio has been silent almost 15 hours since reporting its No. 1 bulkhead which had been stove in, was holding and the sea decreasing.

The Seacomb reported a north-west gale and mountainous seas in the vicinity. That vessel said it was snowing and visibility was cut to half a mile.

Progressives Fail To Obtain Delay on WDA Repeal Measure

Madison—(7)—Republican assemblymen today blocked a Progressive attempt to delay repeal of the Wisconsin Development Authority.

Andrew J. Biemiller (P) Milwaukee, moved to postpone action on the bill—scheduled for consideration tomorrow—until Tuesday. The motion was defeated, 60 to 35.

Biemiller and Paul R. Alfonsi (P) Pence, declared there was no need for haste since the department's appropriation does not expire until June 30, and that since the bill was controversial more time was needed for consideration.

Reuben W. Peterson, Berlin, Republican floor leader, led the fight against the motion, saying the bill had been given ample hearing.

Peterson claimed John Becker, WDA head, "willfully neglected" to testify before a joint legislative committee Tuesday, adding that if the department head does not see fit to defend it, "the department is not entitled to much consideration."

Simpleton wants to know the difference between "invention" and "discovery." Here "invention" is an invention. "A base invention" is the accepted form. But when you knock the other side of course you say that, after painstaking investigation, you have discovered "invention," etc., etc. Very often the two go together, or one brings the other. For instance, a pleasant result was discovered by the person who invented this classified want-ad and ran it in The Post-Crescent.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and Gerard D. Reilly, labor department solicitor, both of whom were named in an impeachment resolution, are shown as they appeared before the house judiciary committee to declare the charges unfounded.

Roosevelt Ignores Guffey's Recommendation in Choice of U. S. Judge in Pennsylvania

Washington—(7)—In the midst of a bitter quarrel with Virginia's Carter Glass over judgeship appointments, President Roosevelt disregarded another senatorial recommendation today in nominating Francis Biddle of Philadelphia for the federal bench.

In this instance it was one of Mr. Roosevelt's staunchest supporters, Senator Guffey (D-Pa.), whose single choice for a vacancy on the Third United States circuit court was overlooked in favor of Biddle, who was special counsel to the congressional committee which investigated the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Guffey said he had suggested "only one man," Judge Michael A. Musmanno of Pittsburgh.

But unlike the controversy with Glass, when he and his colleague, Senator Byrd (D-Va.), declared Mr. Roosevelt's choice "personally offensive" and the senate rejected the nomination of Floyd H. Roberts to be federal district judge 72 to 9, Guffey did not indicate opposition to Biddle. On the contrary, Guffey said:

"I know Mr. Biddle very well. He is an able lawyer and, in my opinion will make an excellent jurist."

A few minutes after the Biddle nomination, Senator King (D-Utah) blocked senate confirmation of former governor James V. Allred of Texas, named by the president to be a federal judge in Texas.

At the same time the senate confirmed by unanimous consent Michael L. Igoe as federal judge in the Northern district of Illinois and William J. Campbell to succeed Igoe as United States attorney in the district.

Another judgeship appointment today was that of Robert P. Patterson of Garrison, N. Y., to take the place of Judge Martin T. Manton, resigned, on the bench of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals at New York.

Patterson is a Republican. Patterson, a World War veteran who was awarded the distinguished service cross, is a Republican. He

Try to Determine Cause of Tragedy

Student Pilot, Passenger Are Killed in Illi- nois Crash

Chicago—(7)—The tangled wreckage of a small training biplane that crashed near the Illinois-Indiana line, killing a student pilot and his passenger, balked attempts today to discover the cause of the accident.

The victims were Louis Berhold, 25, of Calumet, Ind., the pilot, and Stanley Dziadzick, 22, of East Chicago, Ind.

Rescue workers labored more than an hour yesterday to extricate their bodies from wreckage. The plane went into a shallow dive, lost a wing, and roared to earth in a 2,000 foot power dive.

The plane struck a frozen farm field south of Lansing. The broken wing fluttered to a spot 250 feet away. F. H. Longeway, an inspector for the civil aeronautics authority, said he was unable to determine the cause of structural failure because of the tangled wreckage.

Four telephone company linemen at work on poles nearby said the plane narrowly missed hitting them as it fell. They were Glenn Steele, Michigan City, Ind., R. W. Marks, and E. C. Kritch, both of Gary, and Lawrence Sparks of Chicago Heights.

Physicians said the youth, Duchin Tomas, 19, may not live. The snow slide that carried away the top of his home and killed his mother and sister swept him along securely wrapped in his bedclothes, accounting for his survival until reached at 9 a. m. today by copper miners who had dug out all night.

The body of his mother, Mrs. Stana Tomas, 41, was found last night. His sister, Helen, 21, was found dead at the same time. Duchin was rescued.

Missing is Sam Marich, 42, a boarder in the Tomas home. Searching parties also found the cabin of Hohn Bizjack, 55, half a mile above the Tomas home, was carried away in the terrific slide. No trace of Bizjack was found and fears were felt that he, too, had been killed.

Five Men are Entombed
In Pennsylvania Mines

Pottsville, Pa.—(7)—Five men were entombed in makeshift coal holes today in western Schuylkill county as rescue workers dug through two falls of rock without a sign whether the men were living or dead.

As one crew cut through rock that fell more than 24 hours ago in a hole at Goodspring, other rescuers were called to a second accident in an anthracite pit only a few miles away.

Two brothers and a companion were trapped at least 60 feet underground in the hole at Goodspring. Workers summoned to Kohler Gap were told two unidentified men were trapped there.

Pope Suffers New Setback In His Illness

Pontiff Unconscious for More Than Half Hour But Revives

REPORTED RESTING

Influenza Develops Into Bronchial Pneumonia At Vatican

Vatican City—(7)—An informant familiar with the state of Pope Pius XI's health, who earlier had said the pontiff was suffering from bronchial pneumonia, tonight said his holiness had a light case of bronchitis. This informant said further examination of the pope failed to confirm the earlier diagnosis.

Vatican City—(7)—A Vatican news service said tonight that Pope Pius had suffered an attack of cardiac asthma and was unconscious for more than an hour.

Physicians in attendance administered restoratives which brought him back to consciousness, the service said.

After the attack which occurred this evening, his holiness was reported "improved and resting tranquilly."

The service a short time earlier had reported that the pontiff had taken "a slight turn for the worse." It gave no details but other sources familiar with his condition said an attack of influenza had developed into bronchial pneumonia.

Several physicians, including Dr. Filippo Rocchi, attended the pope and at least one was present throughout the entire day, it was learned.

May Cancel Meeting

In Vatican circles it was regarded as almost certain that the meeting of all Italian bishops which the pope was scheduled to address Saturday in observance of the tenth anniversary of the Lateran accord between the church and the Italian state would have to be canceled.

It also was considered unlikely that the pope would attend Sunday's pontifical mass at St. Peter's to inaugurate the eighteenth year of his pontificate.

Many of the Italian prelates, learning of the seriousness of the pope's condition, on their arrival at Rome in response to his summons, participated in prayers for him at various churches of the city.

The Vatican personnel gathered in Pauline chapel to pray for him. The holy father's condition was reported to have taken a turn for the worse during the day after Vatican sources in the morning had described it as unchanged since yesterday.

Several doctors were understood to be in constant attendance at the pontiff's bedside.

The reported aggravation of his illness caused serious concern because of the pope's weak heart.

The 81-year-old pontiff suffered a mild attack of influenza two days ago.

He collapsed with a heart attack Nov. 25 but resumed his regular heavy schedule of audiences on Dec. 3.

New Job Relief Setup Proposed in Congress

Washington—(7)—Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.) introduced a bill today to set up an entirely new system of unemployment relief under a new department of public works.

The legislation, designed to carry out recent recommendations of Byrnes' special unemployment committee, would bring into the new department the WPA, the PWA, the public buildings branch of the treasury, the bureau of public roads, the CCC and the national youth administration.

The department would make grants to local governments for public works, limiting federal contributions on individual projects to two thirds of their cost.

Cold Keeps Roosevelt In Living Quarters

Washington—(7)—President Roosevelt remained in the living quarters of the White House today to doctor a cold in the nose. While House officials said Surgeon General Ross T. McIntire, the president's physician, thought he would be all right tomorrow.

Relief for residents of flooded communities in eastern Kentucky remained a major problem. The Red Cross led the work of filling needs of families in 30 counties along the Ohio, Kentucky, Licking and Big Sandy rivers.

State health department officials said water supplies cut off or impaired by last week's floods were satisfactory in most communities. Red Cross and health authorities reported "normal" health conditions in the flooded areas, expressing the opinion quick inoculation of thousands of persons had checked any possibility of a typhoid epidemic.

Insurgent Troops Plant Banners at French Frontier

France Holds Spanish Regime No Longer Exists

TAKES NEW POSITION

Officials Cite Premier Negrin's Flight Across Line

Paris—(7)—An informant close to the foreign office said today that the French government considers that the republican government of Spain is "no longer in existence," since government Premier Juan Negrin entered France yesterday.

In foreign office circles it was said the reason for the government's new attitude toward the Spanish government was Negrin's "flight" across the border at Le Perthus.

French officials now hold that the Negrin regime has left its own country. Today it moved further north into France as insurgent troops occupied the Spanish part of Le Perthus, which straddles the French-Spanish boundary.

Negrin yesterday took up headquarters in a house in Spanish Le Perthus, but to enter it he had to cross the border, since its entrance is on French soil. Today he and his advisers left Le Perthus on a road leading further into France.

See New Pressure

Observers of the situation confronting the Spanish government expressed belief that the reported French attitude might be a new effort to put pressure on Negrin to capitulate to insurgent demands for unconditional surrender.

This, however, still was without official French confirmation. Manuel Azana, Spanish government president, meanwhile, held a series of conferences here at the Spanish embassy, but would make no statement.

Among those he saw were Marcelino Pascua, Spanish government ambassador to France, for minister Premier Jose Giral, Fernando Clerigo, vice president of the cortes (Spanish government parliament), and several former government ministers.

ITALIAN VIEW

Rome—(7)—The authoritative fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, today suggested that British assistance in negotiations for surrender of the Spanish island of Minorca might be designed to give Britain and France a foothold there at Italy's expense.

He also declared Britain's "armed coalition" with France left open the possibility of bringing the United States into it.

(Spanish government officials today left Minorca, strongly fortified Balearic island, aboard the British cruiser Devonshire.)

Italian government, meanwhile, announced that new rules governing military service and an increase in the nation's population now made it possible for Italy to mobilize more than 10,000,000 men for active army service in event of war.

Premier Mussolini previously had put the maximum figure at 9,000,000.

Gayda, writing in Il Giornale d'Italia, asked the meaning of "this coming and going around the island of Minorca."

Begin to Rebuild As Floods Recede Along Ohio River

Louisville, Ky.—(7)—With the danger of serious flood damage along the Ohio river apparently past, Kentucky turned new attention today to the tedious task of rebuilding eastern Kentucky mountain communities struck by high waters of smaller streams.

The Ohio remained stationary at seven feet above flood stage most of the night at Louisville and was dropping slowly upstream. Downriver cities reported the river still was rising but the stages were near predicted crests and weather bureau officials expected little suffering outside off-submerged lowland areas.

Relief for residents of flooded communities in eastern Kentucky remained a major problem. The Red Cross led the work of filling needs of families in 30 counties along the Ohio, Kentucky, Licking and Big Sandy rivers.

War in Europe Not
Inevitable, Benes
Says on Arrival

New York—(7)—Dr. Eduard Benes, former president of Czechoslovakia said on arriving here today he did not consider war in Europe inevitable.

Asked if he thought the democracies, strongly aligned, could avert war, he answered quickly: "Of course."

The scholarly-looking statesman, here to lecture at the University of Chicago on the problems of democracy, declined to discuss the Munich pact, the future of Germany or the ambitions of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler.

"I see the United States as the greatest world democracy; which in the present time is perhaps democracy's last great and really powerful bulwark," he said.

"The United States have today the leadership in the world's cultural and spiritual struggle for peace, freedom and democracy."

Dr. Benes, a quiet-spoken man, voiced the opinion that his country, in spite of losing Sudetenland to Germany, would consolidate itself "politically, culturally and educationally."

House Votes $100,000
For Dies' Group Probe

Washington—(7)—The house voted today to give the Dies committee on un-American activities $100,000 to continue its investigation. A resolution providing the fund was approved on a voice vote.

Chairman Warren (D-N.C.) of the accounts committee presented the money resolution to the house, asserting that while he personally favored a smaller fund, "we gave them $100,000 so there would be no future aish."

State's Oleo Tax
Hurts Business,
Governor Thinks

Madison—(7)—Governor Heil declared at the annual convention of the Wisconsin Association of Mutual Insurance companies yesterday that Wisconsin's tax on oleomargarine is turning away millions of dollars of business from southern states.

"We cannot live within our own shell," he said. "We cannot set up a barrier. We must so act that our products will be acceptable to the other 47 states."

The governor told of a man from Knoxville, Tenn., who bought 70 pounds of cheese in Wisconsin for his own use. This man declared: "If a grocer in Tennessee had a pound of Wisconsin cheese in his store they would run him out of town."

Lost Big Order

As another illustration of the effect of the oleo tax, the governor cited the case of a certain company in the Fox river valley which lost a "half million dollar order" from a southern company right after the tax was put on in Wisconsin.

Governor Heil advised the farm mutuals to "have some money laid away in the stocking of your organization so that when an emergency arises you do not have to go begging." He said he intended to "talk to the bankers" in an effort to liberalize credit.

"This world is coming to an end fast if a banker can't take a moral risk on a good, honest neighbor that he has known for 30 years," Governor Heil said.

Belgian Cabinet Decides to Quit

Brussels—(7)—The cabinet of Premier Paul Henri Spaak resigned today as the result of a split over Spaak's appointment of Dr. Adrian Martens, wartime German sympathizer, to the French academy.

The decision to resign was reached after an emergency session in which three liberal ministers informed the socialist premier they opposed the nomination of Martens and threatened to resign unless it were revoked.

Martens was condemned to death after the World War for cooperating with the Germans, but the sentence was commuted and he later was pardoned under a general amnesty.

His appointment to the academy aroused nationwide controversy and revived much World War bitterness. Spaak himself was slightly injured when he was attacked Feb. 2 by a group of war veterans who resented his action.

Spaak, a moderate socialist, had headed a coalition government of socialists, Catholics and liberals since May 14, 1938.

His position recently has been weakened by discussion over his decision to name a commercial agent to the Spanish insurgent government at Burgos. The Spanish government, then at Barcelona, withdrew its envoy to Belgium in protest.

The appointment of Martens, however, caused a sharp split in the Belgian parliament. Opposition members failed by a vote of 88 to 85 to force a reconsideration.

Burke Proposes Drastic Changes In U. S. Labor Act

Nebraska Wants New Type of Board for Administration

Washington—(AP)—Senator Burke (D-Neb.) proposed today that congress virtually rewrite the Wagner labor relations act and set up a new kind of federal board to administer it.

He completed a series of sweeping amendments designed to protect employers as well as workers in labor disputes, to impose restrictions on various union activities, and to limit powers of the national labor relations board.

Accusing all three members of the present board of being "organized labor partisans," Burke recommended their terms of office be ended next Feb. 1. In their places he would have the president appoint one representative of employees, one of employers, and one of the public.

Authority of the new board would be much narrower than that of the present agency, with which Burke has been involved in controversy almost since its inception.

Court Review

Labor cases would be removed from it to a federal district court, leaving the board only the power of prosecution of a labor complaint. All its rulings would be subject to prompt court review. It would have to give preference to craft unions in determining collective bargaining units.

Burke would let employers petition the labor board for collective bargaining elections a right now given only to employees. He would permit employers to confer with their workers on any subject.

"Unfair labor practices" would be broadened to include striking, in violation of a valid contract, inter-union jurisdictional disputes that interfered with an employer's conduct of his business, and intimidation of workers by union officials.

At present the act recognizes "unfair labor practices" caused only by employers.

Far-Reaching Proposals

Burke's amendments are the most far-reaching yet proposed. Senator Walsh (D-Mass.) recently introduced amendments sponsored by the American Federation of Labor, which contends the board is partial to the CIO.

Administration spokesmen so far have remained silent on revision, and board members themselves have opposed change.

The house yesterday cut out $17,203,000 of the proposed $38,000,000 allocation of the TVA. It inserted a clause to halt work on the Gilbertsville dam and Watts bar dam on the Tennessee river and to prevent investigation of dam sites at Coulter shoals in Tennessee.

The house-approved appropriations for independent agencies were $24,757,550 larger than provided in the commerce bill a year ago, but $28,283,670 below the figure recommended by the budget bureau.

There still was no indication as to how soon the house appropriations committee would consider the president's request for extra WPA funds.

President Trying To Force Showdown Within His Party

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt, with sharp persistence, is pressing for a showdown within the Democratic party.

Issue after issue that will test allegiance of Democrats to the chief executive is being pushed upon congress. A record is being written on relief, on appointments, on spending, that must be laid before the country in 1940.

How long the party will withstand the strain of the presidential tug in one direction and a stout congressional leaning on the other is a question puzzling veteran members of congress. They feel either capitulation or a real struggling match must come eventually.

The president, by throwing a new relief demand to congress, by denouncing the congressional rejection given his appointment of Judge Roberts to the federal bench in Virginia, is showing little disposition to compromise or allow capitulation.

Some of his opponents in congress are not thinking about compromise, either. They are still resentful of the blows he gave a few Democrats in last year's primaries.

Hillman, Murray Would Keep Reds From Union Rule

Want to Force Communists to 'Keep Hands' Out of U. A. W.

Washington—(AP)—Sidney Hillman and Philip Murray, vice presidents of the CIO, disclosed today they had recommended that communists be made to "keep their hands out" of the United Automobile Workers.

They said this recommendation had been given to the union's executive board by the coordinating committee of the union and the CIO, which consisted of themselves and the two men who now are rival presidents of the auto workers—

Home Martin and R. J. Thomas. In a letter which they explained was designed to give union members the facts about the present struggle for leadership of the U. A. W., Hillman and Murray denounced Martin as "a man whose ruthless ambition drives him to wreck what he cannot rule."

Noting that Martin recently had charged that the creation of the coordinating committee took away the independence of the union, the CIO officials said the committee was set up at Martin's request and that it was completely advisory.

Rapped Factionalism

Relating that Martin had supported a report which the committee gave the board, and that the board had approved the committee's work unanimously, Hillman and Murray wrote:

"The committee condemned the practice of certain political sects injecting their factional war-cries into the councils of the U. A. W."

"It recommended in the Allis-Chalmers local, Milwaukee the right of the international union to restrict and eliminate those who would use the local for Communist party purposes. In Lansing (Mich.) it recommended against permitting the 'Limestone' Communists to manipulate the local for their sectarian purposes."

"In condemning both Communists and 'Limestone' Communists the coordinating committee took the side of neither Martin nor Anti-Martin political sects. It proposed that both be made to keep their hands out of the U. A. W. That was the policy of the coordinating committee. That is our policy today."

COMMITTEE MEETING

The finance committee of the city council will meet at 1:30 Friday afternoon in city hall. Current bills will be considered.

Harold Toonen, Joseph Strebel, drills and games; Carlton Voss, John Loessel, advancement; Harry Baick, hiking and camping.

Additional appointments for other activities will be made by the troop committee, according to Schroeder.

Waupaca Council Delays Action on Pay Cut Proposal

Adopts Ordinance Providing New Setup for Fire Department

Waupaca—The council meeting on Tuesday evening included discussions of the relocation of State Trunk Highway 49, the change of aldermen's salaries, ordinances governing the fire department and numerous resolutions.

The resolution to reduce the salaries of aldermen from $200 a year to $120 was presented by Alderman L. D. Seibert. It brought forth a quick response from Alderman Einar Torsell who said: "I would have been disappointed without the presentation of this resolution, re-membering the campaign pledge of Alderman Seibert a year ago. However, I am not in favor of the resolution as it stands. For some the $200 may be excessive, but all have not the same amount of work. Some have not enough to do while others must spend too much time on the job."

Mr. Torsell stated that figuring his time at 25 cents an hour for the last year, the $200 salary would not compensate for his duties as an alderman, but if the council was sincere in the plan to effect economy, then a salary of $150 should not be too much. Torsell is still giving his time on the old basis of $50 a year—salaries having been raised in the spring of 1938. He will be up for reelection this spring if he decides to run.

Alderman Willys Holmes said: "I remember fathering that resolution a year ago. I believed that $5 a council meeting none too much, but I have been glad for the $200 this year, and feel that I have earned it. Having to O. K. relief bills and take the censure of business men justifies the salary." Alderman Claude Johnson declared it would be hard to get a good man to run for office if salaries are reduced. Discussions were finally halted when Alderman Chris Hansen moved to have the resolution laid over until the next meeting.

Raise Police Pay

A resolution calling for a raise in the salaries of police officers was adopted. The new salaries will be $120 for the chief of police; $85 for the night patrolman and all extra police to be hired at 40 cents an hour.

Alderman Holmes requested that an ordinance be passed to extend the time of 90 minute parking to 7 o'clock p. m. from the corner of Main and Fulton streets in order to keep cars moving. The proposal was promptly dropped when Alderman Torsell declared that a legislation in favor of one party to the damage of the next would "be a good thing to stay away from."

New Fire Department

An ordinance governing the fire department was presented by Alderman Torsell and it was adopted. It provides for the abolishment of the present volunteer fire department made up of two companies—the hook and ladder and the hose company. The new organization will be known as the Waupaca Fire Department and consist of one company.

The department will adopt by-laws for its control and management while the council will appropriate funds for apparatus and equipment as deemed expedient to maintain efficiency and protect life and property.

Officers of the new department will receive compensation from the city as fixed by the council, while $750 to be transferred from the fire department maintenance fund to the salary fund, which in addition to the amount in the fund for inspection of buildings will provide sufficient funds for the salaries. The sum of $800 is to be paid the department in four quarterly installments and the 2 per cent fire insurance premium tax is to be paid when received to the treasurer of the fire department for the purpose of paying members as provided by the laws of the fire department.

Salaries of officers are: Fire chief, $120; first assistant fire chief, $30; secretary-treasurer, $15. There also will be a second assistant chief.

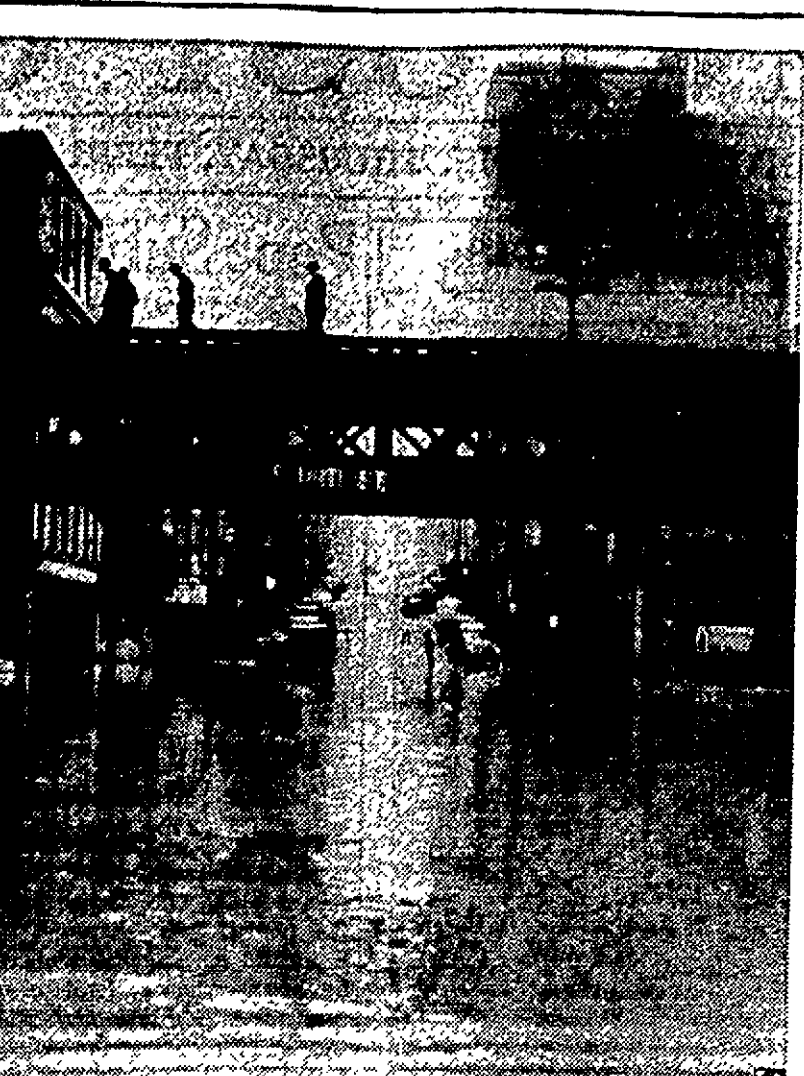

Total membership in the department will be not less than 22, and as many as the chief deems necessary. Active membership ceases at 60 years, when a member can become an honorary member.

Vacancies in the office of chief, assistant and second assistant are to be filled by appointment by a majority vote of the council and no member of the department shall be eligible unless his entire time is spent within the city limits.

Vacation for Janitor

Alderman Willys Holmes sponsored a resolution allowing the janitor of the city hall, James Jensen, to have a leave of absence annually, with pay, and subject to the approval of the fire commission.

While the resolution was finally adopted it brought forth much comment, not all favorable, to any city employee being allowed such vacations. Alderman Torsell asserted that "this doesn't necessarily mean the rest need such a vacation. He is on duty 24 hours of the day, which

RIVER CREEPS UP IN LOUISVILLE

This photo, taken from a skiff at approximately the spot where the docks are ordinarily located, shows how far the swollen Ohio river has reached along Fourth street, Louisville's main north-south business thoroughfare. # Two Cars are Damaged In Traffic Collision

Cars driven by Earl Otto, 537-N. Division street, and Clarence Gorges, Readfield, were involved in a minor collision about 7:10 this morning. Otto was driving east on Spring street and Gorges south on Bennett when the machines collided at the intersection, it was reported to police. Both machines were damaged.

Justifies the request." It was also explained that the janitor had recently had to take a cut in wages, had had the tramps' meals eliminated from his program, which means a saving to the city of anywhere from $75 to $90 per month. Few tramps have requested meals cards from the authorities, under the new regulations, and the cost to the city was but $16.55 since last June. The fact that the janitor must always be ready to answer fire calls brought from Alderman Hansen the comment: "Speaking of undesirable positions, why he can't even go outside the city limits, night or day; I'd go on relief first."

Councilmen passed a resolution for an agreement with the WPA for sanitary sewerage and water mains to cost the sponsor $2,860 for covering the project set-up which will entitle the WPA to an appropriation of $8745 for labor. The program calls for completion of the Third ward sewer, sewerage to the Cary Manufacturing plant, water and sewer to the Ciesleben Oil station and sewerage on both State and Sessions streets.

Deep-Sea Diver Likes His Work Of Exploration

Gene Nohl Says Politics Is All That Prevents Salvaging of Lusitania

"Gravely doesn't mean a thing. You have to learn to live all over again under water," Max Nohl, who holds the world's record for deep sea diving, told members of the Appleton Education association Wednesday evening. Nohl showed his own film, "Adventures Under-neath," in the auditorium of the Carrie E. Morgan school.

"Exploring has always been an obsession with me from my grammar school days when I studied the old geography book," Nohl declared. "And the bottom of the sea offers 150 million square miles of unexplored territory, four-fourths of the world's surface. Down there are tremendous natural resources, sunken ships, whole cities and more gold than is in circulation today—all untouched."

Lecturing as he showed his film, Nohl described his diving equipment as well as the sensation of being under a pressure of 50 pounds or more per square inch. "Someone has said that it feels like five marbles on an empty stomach," he laughed.

Many of the scenes from his film were photographed under water, and the audience could see the restless movement of the ocean's current, the undersea flora, the strange fish. On one of his expeditions he recently discovered an old battleship that had been sunk during the Revolutionary war. The battered hull was still recognizable, and lying near by was the skeleton of some unknown sailor.

Artificial Lung

Recounting the dramatic story of the quest for underwater safety, Nohl showed how he used his artificial "lung." Inhaling oxygen through this small instrument strapped to his back, Nohl can swim as easily as a fish to depths of 60 feet. In this way he is free to abandon the cumbersome diving suit.

But of even greater value to divers was his discovery that helium instead of nitrogen mixed with oxygen will relieve the diver of the dreaded "bends." When the tremendous pressure of the artificial air is released too suddenly, the nitrogen gas will form bubbles in every organ of the human body, frequently causing paralysis and even death. Nohl worked for many months in the laboratories of Marquette university experimenting with helium. He discovered that humans may breathe it under heavy pressure without suffering any ill effects when they come suddenly into a normal atmosphere.

Illustrates Dangers

The fate of a fellow diver, "Jim," illustrated some of the dangers and tragedies connected with deep sea diving. Jim's air tube was suddenly cut off by a huge fish, and he died of the "squeeze." In other words, when the air pressure in his helmet was released, the force of the water from below crushed him to death in his suit. Nohl himself has been as deep into the sea as 420 feet, the world's record. At that depth his body was subjected to a pressure of 190 pounds per square inch.

"When are you going to continue your exploration of the Lusitania," came a question from the audience. "It isn't pressure but politics that is preventing me," answered Nohl. "It is definitely known now that the Lusitania was carrying munitions, and Great Britain is afraid of the evidence that might be discovered."

Nohl, who grew up in Milwaukee, has conducted many of his expeditions in Lake Michigan. He has also explored Rock lake in southern Wisconsin in an effort to find the sunken pyramids, reputed to be the product of an ancient civilization equal to the Greeks in cultural progress.

I can't conceive of things in Europe continuing as they are now much longer.

"Collectivism in some form may come—whether from the right or left," he said.

Asked by Senator Reed (R-Kans.) if he was material for a dictator, Amle said solemnly:

Regrets Statements

"I'd probably be on the original list for liquidation whether the movement was from the right or left."

Amle said he "probably made statements" in 1933 or 1934 that he wouldn't have made a few years later.

"I must ask you to recall the feeling of misapprehension at that time. I remember that at the time we gathered for President Roosevelt's inaugural in 1933 it was common gossip in the Republican cloakrooms that would be the last inaugural."

"That feeling continued almost entirely through 1933 when the New Deal scrapped its economy campaign pledge and embarked on a spending program," Amle added.

He had criticized the Democratic party, Amle said, because he thought its program didn't go far enough.

"I think the Democratic stand about midway between where I stand and where the Republican party stands," Amle said. "I might be called something of a social democrat, under European phraseology. I've frequently changed my ideas, in finding my way around, but I've always stayed within the framework of democratic and constitutional processes."

Not Subversive

"My position might be likened to that of people in the Scandinavian countries, and I'm no more subversive or Communist than any one else who is seeking the way to advance, as they are there."

"I notice that Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin, has been attacked on the campus there as a Communist. Some people seem to think he is even worse than I am. And I note he now is the head of the program committee of the Republican party."

Much of Amle's testimony was a straightforward admission of shortcomings in various books and speeches now being used against him, particularly a book called "The Handbook of the Forgotten Man" which he said was hurriedly assembled, and offered no solution.

Amle denied he cooperated with Dr. Harry F. Ward of the Union Theological Seminary in preparation of a pamphlet brought before the committee Tuesday as a "radical document," but not admitted to the record.

"I'm willing to confess I was in error," Amle said at one stage. "I was learning."

"If the committee wants a label for me it can call me a follower of Thorstein Veblen rather than Karl Marx."

Veblen, an American, advocated a "theory of the leisure class" while Marx is recognized as the father of the present Communist party throughout the world.

5 Big European Powers Will Have 700,000 in Air Forces

BY DEVON FRANCIS
New York—(AP)—Intensive training programs occasioned by the threat of war are expected to provide Europe's five major powers with regular and reserve air forces totaling some 700,000 men by the end of 1939.

That is more than four times the authorized enlisted strength of the entire United States army.

A survey of these European programs today produced these round figures for the respective countries: Italy—10,000 pilots and a reserve (pilots, mechanics, radio technicians, etc.) of 120,000.

France—A total of as enlisted and officer strength in the air of 88,900 by the close of the year.

Great Britain—A goal of an enlisted and officer strength of 100,000 for the royal air force by June.

Germany—A total force, flying and non-flying, in the regular air corps of more than 100,000; a reserve of from 65,000 to 70,000, most of whom are reported to know the rudiments of piloting a plane.

Russia—An air force, flying and non-flying, of at least 100,000 men, and a reserve of at least that many more thousands of whom have qualified as pilots.

Italy, Germany and Russia have the most comprehensive air training programs, and their air force personnel is drawn from a reservoir of youngsters who are taught the rudiments of aeronautics when, or before, they reach their teens.

Nearly Great Britain nor France have anything to compare with the air education programs for

Sad Picture as Statesmen Squabble Over a Judgeship

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—One of the most dismal spectacles that we have seen here for some time is that of two notable statesmen like President Roosevelt and Senator Carter Glass engaged in a small-time political brawl over a judgeship.

During the heat of the primary purges last summer, Roosevelt threw a harpoon into the Glass-Byrd machine in Virginia by appointing as federal judge a man from the opposition crowd. Glass didn't like it. So he buttonholed senators to stand by him and they did, refusing confirmation to Roosevelt's appointee. That's all there is to it. No question was raised as to the ability of Floyd H. Roberts to be judge. He was endorsed by the present governor of Virginia and several previous governors. But he belonged to the anti-machine crowd. There is nothing more to the row than that.

Yet the senate voted 72 to 9 against the appointment, even stalwart New Deal senators voting with Glass in numerous instances. Some New Dealers ran out on the vote. The senators, as one cynic put it, were determined to keep politics out of the judiciary. Senators regard the judiciary as their special gravy.

Raymond Clapper, A senator claims the right, by custom, to name the federal judges in his territory if his party is in power. As between upholding the president and hanging on to this judicial patronage, a democratic senator is more likely to let the president shift for himself and save his senatorial patronage. Thus Glass won a resounding victory and the president was told that the judiciary should be kept free of any except senatorial politics.

In a long letter to the defeated judge, Roosevelt recited his version of the affair, which began nearly a year ago when Glass objected to Governor Price of Virginia having any determination in the selection. Roosevelt spent considerable time in his press conference reading the letter and obviously is desirous of raising the issue of senatorial control of judicial nominations before the country.

Works Final Break in Dissolving Friendship Known for years as an unrequited rebel, Senator Glass at the ripe age of 81 years now becomes a full-fledged one. This affair marks the final break in a long and gradually dissolving friendship with Roosevelt.

One of the first acts of Roosevelt after his election in 1932 was to offer to make Senator Glass secretary of the treasury. Glass had warmly supported Roosevelt and had made one of the most effective radio speeches of the campaign in behalf of the Democratic presidential candidate, leaving a sickbed to go to the microphone. He declined to enter the cabinet, saying his health would not permit it.

But no sooner had Roosevelt entered the White House than Glass began to dissent. He opposed NRA and refused to hoist the blue eagle. He opposed invalidation of the gold clause, AAA and the inflation amendment to AAA. Quickly he became the spearhead of the anti-Roosevelt Democrats.

Supported Roosevelt in Election Campaign Yet Glass always was welcome at the White House, and he appeared on the rear platform of the Roosevelt train in Virginia, arm in arm with the president. Although he opposed many of the things Roosevelt was doing, he supported the president for reelection.

As chairman of the senate appropriations committee, he holds a strategic position in congress. As an outspoken conservative, Glass, who is a skillful debater, has provided the vocal leadership for much of the opposition to Roosevelt. No one was more outraged by the supreme court enlargement proposal than Glass, who exploded every hour on the hours over what seemed to him a dragging of the judiciary into politics. Now he has rounded up most of the senators in a personal patronage fight because he can't get a judge from his own political faction in Virginia.

That was easy, as Jim Watson once said, there comes a time when every politician must rise above principle.

IT'S A HIT! The NEW Firestone CHAMPION TIRE

Because IT'S THE ONLY TIRE MADE WITH THE NEW SAFETY-LOCK CORD BODY and GEAR-GRIP TREAD

CAR OWNERS everywhere are acclaiming the extra blowout protection and non-skid safety of the new Firestone Champion Tire. And automobile manufacturers, knowing its outstanding performance, have adopted it for their new 1939 models. On every hand you hear, "It's the most effective tire we have ever had on wet pavement and in mud and snow!" It's the hit of 1939!

The Firestone Champion Tire is a completely new achievement in safety engineering and the result of a new and revolutionary means of locking greater safety into the cord body of a tire. This is accomplished first, by the use of a new type of tire cord called "Safety-Lock," in which the cotton fibers are more compactly interwoven to give greater strength. And then the fibers in each individual cord, the cords in each ply and the plies themselves are all securely locked together by a new and advanced Firestone process of Gum-Dipping, which provides amazingly greater strength—and greater strength means greater safety.

The new Safety-Lock cord construction gives the added strength that makes possible the use of the new thicker, tougher, deeper Firestone Gear-Grip Tread, which provides remarkably longer non-skid mileage. This sensational new tread is called "Gear-Grip" because of its unique design which has more than three thousand sharp-edged angles that grip the road with a sure-footed hold to protect against skidding and to assure a safe stop.

Come in today and equip your car with a set of new Firestone Champion Tires, the only tires made that are safety-proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

Audience Crowds Auditorium for High School Play

Thespian Group Gives Effective Showing of 'The Eyes of Tlaloc'

New London—A capacity audience of students and townspeople attended the Washington High school Thespian mystery production, "The Eyes of Tlaloc" Wednesday evening at the high school auditorium. The cast showed promising talent and a great deal of credit must be given the manual arts department for the splendid new stage settings which added materially to the performance.

The action of the play took place in a ranch home in southern California. Eunice Frohburger and Robert Hutchinson, playing the roles of Amanda and Ezra Simpkins, caretakers of the ranch, handled capably the difficult task of portraying middle aged characters.

Excellent comedy was provided by Patricia Guevin and Maurice Levine as Pepita and Salvador Del Santos. Much color was added to the play by their clever take-off of the Mexican dialect.

Warren Spurr in the character of Nawa, the sinister Indian, was outstanding. Romance was woven into the plot through the characters of Nancy Howe, niece of the ranch owner, and Tommy Tinker, an engaging young man posing as a prize fighter. The parts were well taken by Helen Schoenrock and Richard Demming.

Others in Act
The mysterious professor was convincingly played by Alan Fontstad; Virginia Lee Byrd, a southern girl, and Pat Gillis, a breezy Western girl, were pleasingly portrayed by Kathleen Smith and Mary Dawson and Jack Seering as a sage brush taxi driver and Garret Clegg as a rancher, were commendable in their roles.

Members of the technical staff included Harry Herres, stage manager; Richard Wyman, electrician; Clifford Forster, Lloyd Bodah, sound effects; Ethel Knappstein, business manager; Patricia Egan, Douglas Hanson and Marilyn Monroe, art work.

Music prior to the show and between acts was supplied by the high school orchestra under the direction of M. S. Zahrt.

REASSURING BUSINESS

Gov. Heil speaking to the members of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce took occasion to assure all Wisconsin businessmen that they might "make plans with the full confidence that so far as the government of the state of Wisconsin is concerned you have nothing to fear."

That is a cheering statement for business and so far as a declaration of policy is concerned it is about as forthright an utterance as could be asked. However it is a very general statement such as might be expected from a Milwaukee businessman who had made good in politics and returned to address his former friends and intimates as the new governor of Wisconsin. He did not outline any definite plans to help business.

Perhaps the new governor has not had time yet to develop a full program, but word comes from Madison that the legislature is mulling about blindly with a hopper full of bills uncertain which direction to take or what policy to follow with respect to the numerous problems confronting it. The governor has made a great many public speeches since his term began nearly six weeks ago, and many people have professed to find conflict in some of his statements. It may be no more than honest to say for the information of both the governor and the new legislative majority that the general impression of the public is that the past six weeks have been devoted almost entirely to ripping out the old LaFollette structure of law and personnel. Whether this policy of destruction will greatly benefit the state may well be doubted unless, of course, the new administration has some sound constructive proposals for replacement which have not yet been revealed to the public.

It may be that a few partisan Democrats or Republicans applaud when a Progressive state employee is removed just a minute or two before he is covered in permanently by the provisions of the Civil Service act, but both the governor and the coalition majority in the legislature should remember that it was not a few partisans that elected them. They were chosen by a large swing away from the Progressives by Wisconsin citizens who felt there were some really important matters to be handled in Madison.

The people of Wisconsin voted for Gov. Heil, unquestionably because they were impressed by his own great success in business, and because they felt that a businessman in office would bring some of his organizing talents to the task of formulating policies, getting needed legislation adopted, and showing the way to a short session of the legislature. Pleasant as the governor's words were to the businessmen gathered about the banquet table in Milwaukee, we believe that those same businessmen will listen more attentively to his message of guidance to the legislature which should be forthcoming soon.

BOY SCOUT WEEK

Boy Scout Week is now being observed by more than one million American boys who celebrate the 29th anniversary of scouting in this country.

It is no longer necessary to sell scouting to America. That the nation has long since passed its verdict may be seen in figures which show one out of every eight living male citizens to have at one time or another been associated with the scout movement.

The theme of scout week is "Scouting Carries on American Ideals." For although 55 countries are now members of the Boy Scout organization, the United States boasts more scouts than any other nation. There are over four million scouts in the world today.

The theme of scout week indirectly received its greatest backing from without the American borders. Significant is the fact that the only major countries without scout movements are Germany, Italy and Russia. One of the first international organizations to be abolished by Hitler, Mussolini and Lenin was the Boy Scouts. Scouting may accept such moves as placing definite bonds between its movement and the democratic form of government.

While scouting has no place in the dictator countries, and was superseded by their own youth movements, it continues to flourish and expand in America.

One of the major changes within the scouting movement itself has been the realization of the entire program. Fifteen years ago practically all scouting was accomplished in the larger cities.

Today a boy can be a scout in any section of the United States.

And that the boys are willing may be seen in a recent survey showing from 70 to 90 per cent of the boys in America with a desire to be scouts. Adult interest, not boy interest, is known to be the only remaining drawback in the growth of scouting. There are too many boys who want to be scouts for the institutions to sponsor troops and the leaders to guide them.

Meanwhile, the scouts take time out to celebrate their 29th American birthday. And although scouting has been sold to America, more leaders are needed, and during scout week it might pay adults to think over a few of the facts concerning the celebrants.

THE LESSON OF BARCELONA

While the world is trembling and gnawing its fingernails at the might of German supremacy in the air, and our own Congress is petitioned to enormously extend and enlarge our weapons of defense with the hope that we may yet protect ourselves before Hitler strikes, it might be advisable to read in detail the splendid articles written by military and technical experts who have appraised the effect of bomb dropping on Barcelona, a center of attack for three years this coming summer.

Most of these writers are Englishmen, calm and cool-headed men who present conclusions obtained by months of personal observation right on the ground.

They recount that when Franco, like a bolt of lightning out of the blue skies, commenced dropping bombs on the Spanish metropolis the slaughter was terrible. But then, step by step, they detail how the art of protection was developed until, as My. Cyril Helsby writes, "it took half a ton of high explosives to kill one person." Thus although 500 of these deadly bombs were dropped on Barcelona in 5 days their net result was the destruction of two carefree persons, and two horses that may have been left to their fate by a driver more anxious to get under cover than necessity demanded.

Mr. Helsby cites the fact that although Barcelona received about 2,000 separate air raids, and a total of hundreds of thousands of bombs were rained upon it, both the gas and the electric establishments remained safe and secure to the end although the purpose certainly was to put them out of commission but the aim was poor as the aim from the air will always remain poor.

The Loyalists planted plenty of anti-aircraft guns in positions to protect these establishments. Modern inventions make it possible to detect the approach of air attackers long in advance. The anti-aircraft guns kept the bombers so high that in spite of this furious storm of bombs they couldn't make a direct hit upon the public service plants, large as they were and prominently located, too.

After Barcelona began protecting itself from these attacks by establishing bomb-proof shelters and then warning the people of enemy approach humans were only destroyed in proportion to their recklessness, and refusal to listen to warnings or to repair to shelter until after the attacks were over. Moreover, Barcelona discovered that underground shelters are not entirely essential so long as the anti-aircraft guns keep the bombers high in the air. They constructed structures of reinforced concrete, sand and gravel and ascertained that those within them were perfectly safe excepting from a direct hit, a rare occurrence, and that even direct hits did not result in fatalities, but in little more than a stunning of those under the concrete.

Thus, conclude these technical experts, the morale of Barcelona people arose high as they found themselves secure. They delighted in thumbing their various Spanish noses at the bombers and laughed derisively when they figured up the heavy cost in pesetas of an attack and the little harm done.

Barcelona fell not because of air attacks but because of a military machine that could not be stopped. Indeed, when Franco merely resorted to air attacks he got nowhere.

We think Americans will agree everywhere that we must have a navy second to none in the world, an army and a reserve that is well trained and splendidly equipped, and an air force that is efficient and effective, but we doubt whether the people wish to see their leaders go into a blue funk merely because Herr Hitler is grinding his molars.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SPEAK

Twenty years ago probably there was as much sentiment in the United States against war as there is now. The nation rejoiced in the re-election of a President who "kept us out of war." A month after the inauguration of that President's second term, we were at war.

Twenty years ago anybody could speak freely against war. After April 6 of that year anyone speaking against war was a public enemy and a traitor.

We have an immense capacity for accommodation of sentiment in this country and ingenuity for finding sanctimonious reasons for supporting our conduct. When we got into war we were going to make it a crusade to share our democratic ideals with all the world. Pulpits thundered it. Religious periodicals elaborated it.

One of the leading church papers said that when war was declared on Good Friday, "Ten thousand ministers modified their Easter sermons."

The lesson to learn from the experience is that those who oppose war must do their talking while there is time for it.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—We can look from our windows directly down onto the ice skating arena that is cradled among the skyscrapers of Rockefeller Center, and most of the time we can see Babs Savage.

Babs is only seven years old. She skates like a half-pint Henie, a feather of grace. The railings that frame all four sides of the arena are always lined with people who stand for hours, even on the colder days, admiring the child cutting capers. Tables in the two cafe-lounges that front the rink at either end are generally filled with men and women who are more interested in the charm of the child on ice than in the cocktails before them. There are always eager faces in the windows of the RCA, the Time-Life, the International, and The Associated Press buildings looking down on the scene. Babs plays each day to one of the largest number of spectators of any performer in town, and doesn't seem to be the least bit frightened.

At the age of seven, Babe Savage earns an average of $250 a week—pretty good money for a child. Some of it comes from skating. Some comes from occasional stage appearances. (She was very good in a play called "Case History" early this season.) A good share comes from her work as a photographer's and artist's model.

New Yorkers are skating this year as never before. There are unquestionably more people participating in this sport in New York each day than in the country's more famous winter places. Flooded playgrounds provide good neighborhood ice. For the choosier ones there are indoor rinks. Several nights of the week the ice is packed with skaters. Young men and women, boys and girls, carrying skates are common sights on the avenues, the subways and the buses. Skating caps—not the long ones of several years ago, but streamlined ones that grip the head tightly like skull caps—are widely worn.

The winter's most consistently popular attractions are hockey and the ice shows at the Garden. Sonja Henie, both in person and in her pictures, is credited by many as the inspiration for the revival of interest in skating. Ice shows have become factors in night club entertainment. The St. Regis, the New Yorker and, earlier this season, the International Casino all offered ice shows as their bids for night club patronage.

Bicycle riding has also come to life surprisingly, fast, especially in the suburbs where it may pedal with comparatively little risk of being scuttled by a motorcar. There is no age limit to this form of travel and exercise, either. Adults are finding utilitarian uses for bikes, a favorite one being to use them for riding to and from the suburban railroad stations.

To find the apartment of Helen Morgan even if you happen to know her Greenwich Village address, is quite a chore. Unless you are lucky you won't find her name among those listed on the mail boxes. Here's the reason:

Miss Morgan tries to keep her name there. Nearly every day she writes on a card "Helen Morgan" and puts the card in the place fixed for it. Each evening, hardly without exception, the card is gone.

Autograph hunters take them. Miss Morgan could stop it by typing her name, but if you know Helen you would understand why she doesn't. One of the best hearted of Broadway entertainers, she would rather go to the trouble of fixing a new card each day than to disappoint her public.

The reason famous singers such as Tibbett, John Charles Thomas and even the swing songsters aren't listed in the phone book is due to the annoyance to which they are often subjected by "song pluggers"—the contact men of the music publishers whose job is to sell an artist on the idea of singing their songs.

As an artist, likely as not, these pluggers will call a singer and tell him they just got a "great tune" for him. They do not realize that when a man is awakened from a sound sleep no tune is great.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO
Thursday, Feb. 10, 1939

Building plans for Appleton's new Y.M.C.A. were expected to arrive the next day from the architects, Shattuck and Hussey of Chicago. George F. Werner had been named secretary of the association.

Two children in the family of Frank Grosser, 1233 Eighth street, were overcome by coal gas poisoning from a stove. Both children recovered. The Appleton Rug Co. was reorganized with O. P. Schaefer as president, James A. Wood as vice president, John Hettinger secretary, and S. K. Wambold as manager. About a dozen persons were employed in the factory on Lawrence street.

Alex Landgraf bought the Landgraf hotel at Menasha. From the estate of the late Valentine Landgraf for $7,000.

D. E. Vaughn and Leo Stilp had returned from a visit to Denver, Col.

C. R. Miller was in Milwaukee arranging for motion pictures that were to open at the Bijou theater that week.

10 YEARS AGO
Thursday, Feb. 7, 1929

A. K. Ellis announced that bus service in this area would be called off on March 1 unless an agreement could be reached by the municipalities on the license fee to be charged for busses. The council adopted an ordinance making it a misdemeanor for an airplane to fly less than 3,000 feet above the city.

The program was being prepared for formal dedication of the Nurses' home in connection with Thecla Clark hospital at Neenah.

Removal of snow from Appleton streets had cost about $9,000 so far that year, it was stated by R. H. Backworthy, street commissioner.

The council turned down a proposal to permit businessmen to establish an ornamental lighting system on College avenue.

A. C. Bosser, city attorney, was instructed to see if the city could recover $43,000 from Outagamie county, representing a part of the bank tax loss.

Mayor A. C. Rule vetoed a council resolution providing for extension of Second street to Whitman avenue.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

ROSEMARY'S BABY

Rosemary's baby was born today—
A lucky baby who doesn't know
His mother is young and bravely gay.
With happy eyes glow!

But soon he'll learn he's a favored lad
To find the curve of his mother's arm,
And know that there, in a world gone mad,
A child is loved and warm.

Rosemary's baby will live to see
Emerging out of our twisted days,
Tomorrow's high opportunity—
A new world for his gaze!

But of the wonders that must await
This little prince from a world apart
There is no lovelier gift from Fate
Than Rosemary's mother heart!

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — A nice issue between political needs and liberal policy has arisen in New Jersey such as would tease the liver out of any President inclined to worry over them.

We question whether the President tortures himself much over such situations but on his desk are two nominations for a vacancy on the federal district court in New Jersey.

One came from Senator Smathers, a senator from the southern end of the state. The other came directly from Mayor Hague of Jersey City. Democratic boss of the state and vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Thomas Glynn Walker, a member of the New Jersey board of errors and appeals, is Hague's man. W. Orvyl Scallick, assistant United States attorney in New Jersey, is Smathers' man.

Hague is not generally known as a liberal. But nobody does it. He is the big cheese in New Jersey democratic politics. If any one man in New Jersey can deliver a delegation at the 1940 national convention, it is Mayor Hague. So he is an important political ally.

Comparatively, Smathers is no great political shakes in New Jersey but he is a senator, nevertheless, and will be for four years. Quite to the surprise both of Republicans and Democrats, he was elected in 1936 in the Democratic landslide. He has voted consistently with Roosevelt. So, perforce, administration figures consider him a liberal.

The other day he got up to make his first senatorial speech, in support of the large relief bill. Smathers, like many others, believed vice-president Garner was instigator of the movement to trim the relief appropriation. So he wrote into his speech this statement: "I came to Washington to follow a President, not a vice president." Only at the insistence of majority leader Barkley did he remove that sentence in the interest of keeping peace in the family.

So, he is an administration asset and not lightly to be tossed aside. Thus the issue rises before the President whether to please Smathers by appointing his man or to please Hague with the hope of having loyal New Jersey delegation in 1940.

In one instance already the President has stood by Smathers and against Hague. Smathers had proposed Judge Clark of the Federal court in New Jersey for a place on the Third Circuit court. The President nominated him late last session just as Hague was scheduled to appear in Clark's court to defend his orders from using Jersey City courts. Clark has long been at odds with Hague. The Senate promptly confirmed Clark's appointment by an overwhelming vote. Later, Clark held that Hague was abusing his power, and enjoined him from interfering with visiting speakers.

Pending Some Time
The new conflict has been pending before the President for eight months, with indications appearing now that a decision is likely to be made very soon.

The President later visited the President late last session, saying the interview had been satisfactory. He planned a later call on Attorney General Murphy.

But there are other considerations, a little more closely identified with principle. Some of the Democrats who were coaxed into the Republican harness don't like the shape of things. Some of them, for example, come from industrial districts where they were elected as New Dealers. They're scared of the labor bill which Republicans are talking about passing at the instance of the Council of Agriculture and against the bitter opposition of organized labor.

Others are getting querulous letters from the Democrats at home who aren't so politically wise and who can't follow the logic of an alliance which is opposed to the national Democratic administration and Mr. Roosevelt.

It is not accurate to say that the Coalition is certain to dissolve, but it is showing signs of lurching.

It took about 5 minutes of the council's time to dispose of the salary question, the most important business of the meeting.

I am presenting this picture to the tax payer and voter to show them how the business of the city is being conducted and to guide him in his choice for representation for his ward in the common council when he goes to the polls. Under the 18 alderman ordinance plan which is now the law, the wards have been reduced in size and the aldermen have less responsibility and less business to supervise than formerly. Because of this it was always the plan to reduce the salaries of the aldermen, for this year the plan to reduce salaries has been defeated by the present council's action. Petitions are being circulated now to fix the salaries of the aldermen at $250 per year under the 18 alderman ordinance.

I am not running for any office and have no purpose in mind other than to hold the cost of city government somewhere near what it should be.

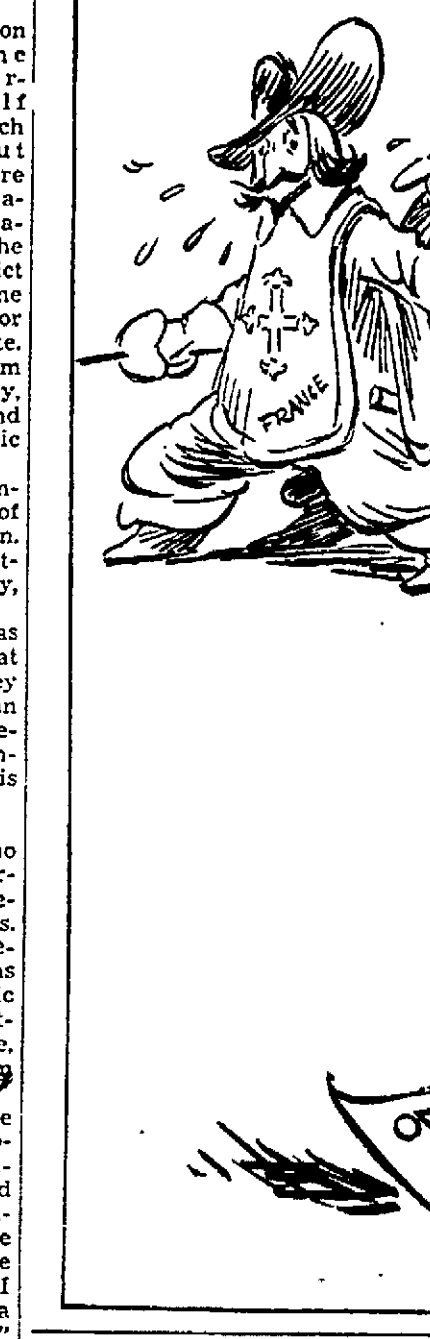

Daniel Leppa

Now comes the main business for which the council meeting was called. Namely, the setting of salaries for aldermen for the year. Under the state law this must be done at the first regular meeting of the common council in February. Under the law also, if the council does not change the salaries at this meeting, the salaries in effect remain the same for the coming year. In this case the alderman salaries are $500 per year. At this figure these council meetings cost the taxpayers over $200 per alderman per regular meeting.

Instead of the aldermen bringing the matter of salary before the council for discussion, one of the aldermen, as if by treachery, made a motion to adjourn. The move fixed the salary at $500 for the coming year. Those voting to adjourn and to save the $500 salary

Madison—From widely varying sources come suggestions that the Democratic flank of the Coalition in the state legislature is disintegrating, and cogitating the possibility of a bolt from the arms of the Heil administration.

It will be remembered that the Republicans organized the houses with the aid of the Democrats in the daily through the promise of rich slices of patronage. Some of the followers of Jackson and Jefferson who are inclined to take the long view of things, however, are presently wondering whether they made a good bargain. Besides, the patronage is very slow in arriving. Julius Heil has not yet admitted for the record that he even acknowledges their claims.

But there are other considerations, a little more closely identified with principle. Some of the Democrats who were coaxed into the Republican harness don't like the shape of things. ## Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

GOOD MORNING, HOW WELL ARE YOU?

I propose that instead of greeting friends in the conventional way, which I fear, is rather negative in implication and so suggests a negative response, such as "Oh, pretty well, for me," or "Doing as well as can be expected" or "Not complaining," one should put a positive suggestion into the greeting and instead of saying "How are you?" say "How well are you?"

That inquiry at once places the friend or acquaintance on a slightly higher plane or level and creates a desire to respond in kind, as, for example: "I received a rating of 90 on my spring, summer and autumn tests."

For years we have been trying to teach people that periodic health examinations or tests are worth what they cost in time and money. But perhaps our efforts have brought indifferent success for the very reason that we predicated the practice on a negative incentive—the desire to be assured one hasn't tuberculosis, goitre, heart disease, etc. As popular knowledge of hygiene and the ways of health increases popular interest in the methods and means of gaining or regaining better-than-average health, vice increases too, and the periodic health examination ought to be predicated on the positive desire to excel in health rating.

As we proceed with this harangue and present the keys to vite it will become manifest that what keeps a good many individuals on the lower health level or even in the borderline drifting aimless along may be for example, merely a shortage of iodine or of calcium or of one or more vitamins in the daily take, so it should be clear enough to the casual reader that low level of health in such cases is a nutritional deficiency.

But even in cases where the health impairment is primarily due to chronic poisoning, as by arsenic in various occupational and domestic environments; or to chronic anxiety or interference with the constant delivery of a full quota of oxygen to the body cells as a result of frequent exposure to air slightly contaminated with carbon monoxide; or to insufficient direct sunshine on the naked skin; or to alcohol, tobacco or drugs; the condition to be corrected is mainly a derangement of nutrition. In the medical sense nutrition means not just food or diet, but the sum of the processes by which oxygen, food and water are assimilated, utilized for energy, growth and repair and finally excreted or disposed of.

Most people in the middle level, with a health rating of 75 to 80 muddle along in that mediocre state simply because they have not had the advantage of good health education and they assume their health status is fixed by fate.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Heat Stroke

Would an ice bag on the head of an elderly person, applied often, as treatment for heat stroke, do any harm? (W. H.)

Answer—It might retard recovery. Heat prostration or heat exhaustion or heat stroke is generally a form of shock—the victim is pale, surface cool or cold and clammy, pulse thin and weak, breathing shallow or sighing, consciousness clouded or lost, that response to questions is feeble if any. This is precisely the condition we call shock when it occurs in consequence of an inquiry, operation or fright. (Faint.) Heat externally is always beneficial. An ice bag on the forehead might be good treatment for sunstroke, not for heat exhaustion. In sunstroke the victim is flushed, surface warm and moist, pulse strong and bounding, consciousness lost, breathing deep and stertorous or snoring or noisy as in stroke of paralysis. Cold or ice bag to the head in these circumstances is good treatment.

Eligibility of Amlie for Post Under Question

Votes for Roosevelt Might Class Him as Democrat, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — The controversy with respect to the nomination of Thomas R. Amlie to be a member of the interstate commerce commission has turned thus far on his views toward the capitalistic system, but the real issue is whether the Wisconsin "Progressive" is eligible under the law for the post to which he has been named by President Roosevelt.

The statute, which has persisted for 50 years, with amendments only as to numbers, has the same language today as it had in 1887 when it was first passed. It says:

"Not more than six commissioners shall be appointed from the same political party."

There are at present six avowed Democrats on the interstate commerce commission out of the eleven members. The vacancy to which Mr. Amlie was appointed was held by a Republican.

Was there, then, compliance with the law when Mr. Amlie was appointed? His record in politics is a matter of public evidence now, for he has testified that, in 1932 and also in 1936, he voted for President Roosevelt. Usually, in seeking to determine the political status of a voter, especially as to questions of participation in party primaries, it is generally recognized that whatever a man voted in a previous election has some bearing on how he should be classified politically.

Amlie Affiliation
Likewise, evidence has been brought forward by the persons in active charge of the Democratic party in Wisconsin that Mr. Amlie is not affiliated with them; indeed, the chairman of the Democratic state committee in Wisconsin is on record as opposing the nomination, whereas the Young Democratic club of that state has publicly endorsed Mr. Amlie.

Certainly, whatever relationship Mr. Amlie bears to the Democratic party, he is plainly not a Republican and by that term is meant a member of the major party known as Republican.

The statute could, of course, be construed to mean that minor parties could be taken into consideration, but this would seem to involve affiliation with a party which has its own candidates for president.

Voted For Roosevelt
Since Mr. Amlie voted in the last elections for Mr. Roosevelt, he will be regarded by most disinterested observers as of the same political faith as the Democratic party members.

Technical reading of the law might justify the impression that it means that not more than six members shall belong to one major party, and that it does not matter to what party the others belong. If indeed to any party. But this matter of partisan commissions is not founded on technicalities. It rests on the broad conception developed by congress itself, namely that an independent commission is a creature of congress and that certain legislative powers within prescribed limits can properly be delegated to such a commission because there is both majority and minority political representation on the commission.

Spirit of Law Broken
In other words, the public interest is protected by having opposite political party members on the commission. The assumption is that in this way the commission cannot abuse its power on behalf of the majority party at any time. This problem of giving the minority party adequate representation on independent commissions has become more perplexing, because the spirit of the law has been violated again and again by presidents who have sought to find persons in sympathy with their views among members of the opposite political party. In present-day cleavages as between conservatism and liberalism, party lines are often disregarded by the voters, but the law with respect to the appointment of members of the interstate commerce commission still refers to political parties as such. So, while it is true that the president has the appointing power, the senate may justify its refusal to confirm Mr. Amlie on the ground that the spirit of the law has not been complied with in the appointment of someone who has for eight years voted with the Democratic party and cannot point at any time in recent years to his affiliation with the Republican party. If the Progressive party had been a national party, with its own candidates for the presidency in the last two elections, Mr. Amlie would obviously be qualified, but his vote for Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936, plus his legislative record of agreement with the Democratic party on virtually all its measures, when he was a member of the house of representatives, would appear to make him of the same political party as the six members who now hold office in the interstate commerce commission. And the law does not allow seven of the same political party.

What Mr. Flynn Thinks of Security Reserve Isn't Much

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—John Flynn has a piece in Harper's called "The Social Security Reserve Swindle" from which it would appear that this country's only hope lies in the possibility of his being wrong. He gives little comfort on that score, for he is one of those tip-of-the-tongue, I'm-glad-you-asked-me writers who can carry in his head a string of figures as long as the score-by-innings, and he never steps back. He is an economic Anthony Comstock, forever on the prowl for obscenity in the field of his interest and yelling, "Officer, arrest that man!" He can fuss big.

John is saying that, in the first place, a government insurance plan needs no great reserve because a government can put the bite on the citizens for the necessary money as it goes along. If it puts a great big lump into dead storage that is not so good, because the money ought to be on the loose among the people, buying shoes for the baby and all like that. If it invests in property or industry, the pretty soon private industry is paying taxes to finance cut-throat rivals in which the government is a partner. And if it invests the money in its own bonds at 3 per cent and spends both principal and interest for current expenses the money is gone and the bonds are strictly Peruvian.

That is what they are doing with the reserve. Employee and employer pay their money into a kitty, but instead of saving it for them the treasury grabs it as fast as it comes in, dropping in its I.O.U.'s, and spends it off on Quoddies and rest cures for tired cabinetiers. It pays the reserve 3 per cent on these touches, but that interest money, too, is then lifted out and spent, and replaced in the reserve for further I.O.U.'s.

"All the time," says John, "the government will pay interest on the reserve. To pay this interest it will have to impose additional taxes. By 1942 it will have to raise taxes for interest of $84,000,000. By 1950 almost $500,000,000.

Writes In Way That Spelvin Can Understand
John calls this a fraud because the people were given to believe that the benefits would be paid out of the tax on the payroll and wage of American industry and labor. They didn't understand they would be double-taxed to provide spending money for the government, and he puts the finger on this reserve thing as an intentional gyp never intended as a reserve at all but as a sucker to which the treasury might peddle vast quantities of bonds which there is no intention to redeem.

Harper's costs 40 cents, which is more than most people can afford to pay for good news, much less for bad, so I hope John will warm over his piece for the 3 cent trade. He writes, for all that I can detect to the contrary, a very high-learning type of knowing on this kind of thing, but does it in language that can be understood by my friend George Spelvin, the average American, known earlier, in the phrase of the late Bill Shepherd, as the milkman in Omaha.

If Mr. Spelvin and the milkman are being swindled out of their social security contributions and losing wages, too, as employers cut payrolls and replace men with machines to reduce their social security taxes, all in a pretense of creating a reserve which is spent as fast as it comes in, why, men, that there is stealing! If John is right, then the social security embodies and conceals an income tax on a lot of people whom congress, in its wisdom and pity, expressly exempted from the regular income tax on the ground that it would be a shame to take their money.

There has been other writing and talk to this effect, but it is a free topic and Mr. Flynn is the first to picture a pyramiding deficit which isn't carried on the regular books at all but on the cuff and falsely represented as a reserve.

It recalls a story they tell in Louisville of Henry Watterson's infor-

Would You Marry if You Could Do it Over Again?

BY DOROTHY DIX

If you had it to do over again, would you marry? If you were free and untrammelled to kick up your heels and roam wheresoever you pleased would you stick your neck again in the domestic yolk?

DOROTHY DIX

All of the disgruntled husbands and wives would answer with a loud NO, and even the happily married would look a little doubtful. For the Holy Estate never comes up to what it is press-agented to be, and even the most devoted Darby and Joan have their moments of wondering what made them do it and wishing they hadn't.

Probably there isn't a married man alive who hasn't sighed for the good old times when he had no ball and chain about his feet; when he could come and go as he pleased without having to furnish an iron-clad alibi for every moment he was away from his keeper; when he could stay down town of an evening to play poker without having to perjure his soul by telling lies about a buyer from Oshkosh; when he didn't have a critic on the hearth who kept reminding him of all his faults and shortcomings, and when he could spend his money on fishing trips and What the Well-Dressed Gentleman is wearing, instead of sterilized milk for the baby and having little Johnny's adenoids out, and permanent waves and chiffon frocks.

And assuredly there isn't a married woman who hasn't at some time cast envious eyes at a bachelor girl who had espoused a career instead of a man; who had her own pocketbook and her latchkey; who didn't have to ask any husband for a new hat, or explain what she did with the quarter she gave him week before last; who was free to roam over the world instead of being tied down at home by babies, and who could keep her good looks and her youth because she didn't have anybody to worry over but herself.

Undoubtedly the majority of married people are sure in their own hearts that they would never marry again if they were free. But they would, as is proved by the fact that nearly all widows and widowers marry again as soon as they decently can after they lose the former incumbents of their hearts and homes. Even the divorced rush back into matrimony, though you would think they would be burnt children who would forever afterward be afraid of the fire.

For with all its drawbacks, marriage does something to people that seems to make it impossible for them to live alone and like it. Maybe it is because they find that the lost freedom for which they pined means nothing but loneliness. They come and go as they please because nobody cares what they do, or whether they ever come back. Maybe it is because the men who have resented their wives' nagging have forgotten how to take care of themselves and are as bewildered as a lost dog without its master.

Maybe it is because women find when they lose their husbands they have lost their card of admission to good times and are relegated to the outer zones with the other superfluous women with whom no one wants to bother themselves. Maybe it is because a house without a man in it isn't a home, no matter how many tidies you hang on the chair, and there is no sense in getting up a good dinner that you've got to eat alone. Maybe both men and women miss somebody to quarrel with when they lose their mates and so they rush back into marriage. Anyway, they do it, no matter how much they think that wild horses couldn't drag them again to the altar.

Furthermore, most married people think that if they had a second choice of picking out a wife or husband they would choose some one very different from the one they have. The man who has been married to a sloppy housekeeper is certain he would pick out a good cook. The one who has been united to a doctor's bill is sure he would look out for a healthy, husky girl. The henpecked man who knows he would seek Patient Griselda.

The wife of the Tired Business Man would look for a poet who was all soul instead of all stock market. The wife of the poet would choose a man who could feed her on caviar instead of sonnets. And so on and so on. But this isn't true. Statistics show that the qualities that attracted men

The Spy Tells About Hand He Saw on Train

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Chief: It's been so long since you've heard from me, your Bridge Spy, that you must have thought I had been 'liquidated,' along with a lot of other undercover agents. Spying, of any description, isn't too healthful a vocation these days, is it? But here I am, finally, popping up with another hand that I kibitzed in the club car of a transcontinental train: South, dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

"The bidding on this hand was something to sit up nights over, pondering the strange and inscrutable ways of Fate and Justice. Both sides were vulnerable and South dealt. Without even a tremor of doubt (but with a tell-tale hiccup) the rosy checked king in South position bid one spade.

"West, a beetle-browed individual, almost fell off his chair when he heard South's opening bid, and directed a glare at him that must have singed. After making a lot of faces that would have turned Harpo Marx green with envy, he bellowed 'three no trump.' North and East meekly passed, but South had just begun to fight. He simpered coyly, took another gulp of liquid courage from the tall glass in front of him, and blithely chirped 'four hearts.' This was met by a double that sounded like the train's whistle, only more frightening.

"But if you think South's bidding (vulnerable) was 'something,' kindly follow the play! "West fingered every card in his hand before deciding to open the club ace. That was the last decision he had to make! The jovial declarer ruffed, and ruffed a low spade in dummy. He discarded his lone diamond on the club king, then ruffed a diamond. A second spade ruff killed West's king and a third one (after another diamond ruff) massacred the ace. Now that declarer's spades were established he seemed to have no doubt as to how to proceed. In dummy at this point, he calmly, with all the confidence in the world, laid down the heart king. My eyes were somewhat outside my face by this time, but not too far outside to see the blank queen get smothered on this play. West (whose face was now a curious combination of purple and green) won with the ace, and then might as well have torn up his remaining cards. He led a diamond. Declarer ruffed, drew the ten of hearts with the jack, and solemnly led his three-set spades. Game, rubber, and two over tricks! "Tut, tut, partner," was South's gentle reproach to North, it looks like we were talked out of a slam. Couldn't you tell that West was psyching?"

"Whereupon West picked up a handful of cards and swallowed them before our astonished eyes! "Faithfully yours, The Spy."

I won't sully the foregoing fiction or fact (who knows?) with even a tiny comment.

My Neighbor Says—

Always keep a pair of scissors in the kitchen. They may be put to a variety of uses including cutting string and paper; shredding lettuce and other salad greens; mincing parsley and other seasonings; cutting nuts, citron and various cake and cookie ingredients; trimming off edges of meat; cutting cooked meat, fowl and fish into small pieces; dicing marshmallows and raisins; cutting waxed papers to fit cake and bread pans and trimming off the surplus fat from chops, roasts and steaks either before or after cooking.

(Copyright, 1939)

Since actually it would be your turn to go to see them they would probably say, "We hope you'll come to see us very soon." But as a rule it is not necessary to say anything like this excepting perhaps "Thank you for coming to see me" to those who leave, and to which the other person says, "I hope you'll come to see me soon." All these phrases of politeness are a curious mixture of form on the one hand, and impulse on the other. Failing in impulse, we use the mechanical form, but if we have an impulse to say something else, then we say that.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Some people still believe that wallflowers must wither away, but this is an unscientific attitude. You can make them bloom in a very attractive manner if you cultivate them by the various psychological charts which I offer through this column from week to week.

CASE M-146: Hasley K., aged 31, is cashier in a bank.

"Can personality be improved?" he asked earnestly as soon as he sat down.

"My sweetheart says I am an introvert and too much interested in myself. She says she stood in the bank for an hour the other day and watched the cashiers at the four windows.

"She says not one of us smiled in all that time, although we are dealt attire, and the habits which are developed by us.

A baby has very little personality, therefore, because he has scarcely any habits, few clothes, and not much in the way of physical charm.

Personality Can Be Improved
As he grows older, however, he becomes either taciturn, boorish and embittered, or jolly, popular and tactful, depending upon his habits. You do not inherit your personality. It is chiefly an acquired thing, for habits are learned, not inborn, and personality is a fabric, woven from your habits, physical attributes and costume.

Wallflowers, as well as the life of the party type of person, start out with possibly the same physical beauty. But the wallflower has failed to learn the social graces.

He cannot carry on an interesting conversation. Probably he cannot dance or sing, or play in the orchestra, for he never developed the corresponding habits.

Let his timidity check his attempts to make a speech in class or teach a Sunday school group. Perhaps he never had playmates or a house full of brothers and sisters in his childhood.

Making Wallflowers Bloom
Maybe his mother mollycoddled him too much, so he was afraid of being away from her apron strings. Perhaps he was terrified at sleeping away from home.

Wallflowers can be made to bloom socially and become the life of the party if they methodically practice the various habits which build social assurance and charm.

You can learn to play the piano if you practice diligently. Popularity is quite like piano playing. You must simply practice a long time and learn how to strike responsive chords among human beings instead of among the ivory keys.

In this column I present a wide range of applied psychology. But you cannot learn to swim by simply reading a book or newspaper column on the subject. Habits demand practice. Begin with the COMPLEMENT CLUB, and then write for the other social charts and rating scales which I offer you from week to week in this psychology column.

Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a "letter" stamped, addressed envelope for reply. Letters and readers' names are never published.

Beauty and You

By PATRICIA LINDSAY

Sometimes it isn't a bad experience for a girl to lose a cherished beauty. Up until the time when he told her he "didn't feel like getting married," or murmured something about "meeting another girl" who took his fancy, the rejected damsel perhaps felt a little bit sure of herself and of him! The blow gave her a jolt.

How you get the jolt, really doesn't matter, as long as you get it! For ten to one within a month's time you are a more attractive female, a more interesting one, and truly like yourself the better! Joys are good for all dispirited souls. It puts us out on our sterling and makes us look candidly at the reflection in the mirror. Then we set about improving our looks, and our circumstances. In other words we get pretty darn mad and decide that fate isn't going to buffet us about as it wishes! And that is a good thing.

Other Things Inspire
Getting into a rut, mentally and physically, is flirting with several disasters—old age, illness, loss of friendship and loss of beauty. All of us must "keep up" in beauty, health, enthusiasm, mental interest and faith, to bear along with whimsical life and get any fun out of it at all!

It is good to go out socially, to come into the presence of women more attractive than yourselves. It is good to attend the theatre, the movies, and see your favorite actress dramatize the charm which you should possess. It is also good to go to one of the best beauty salons and see what can be done with you!

Do Not Be Mrs. Milquetoast!
And no! Do not make the mistake which numerous women are inclined to. That is, feel you are pretty hopeless and not much can be done with you. That is nonsense. There isn't a woman or girl alive who hasn't the potentialities of being a very interesting and attractive person. Remember your personality plays as important a part in "charm" as your physical appearance.

Embrace the new fashions—extreme though they may seem to you. Learn to talk nicely, walk prettily and daintily, and dare to shock those who know you very well! Because people are used to thinking of you as a drab little piece, do not be afraid to show them how stunning you can make yourself when you have a mind to!

It is good to remember that beauties are made not born! It takes exertion on your part, and determination, but you may be the envy of your own little group if you go about it intelligently. All you need is a good jolt to get you going! May it come soon!

Unruly Child Should be Taken To Doctor for Treatment--Patric

BY ANGELO PATRI

"If you had a child who defied you, who made life miserable for everybody in the household, from oldest to youngest, what would you do with her? All through her school life she be-deviled the teachers, fought with her schoolmates, and annoyed her brothers and sisters. She gets the good-looking, has nice manners when she wants to use them, and is a good secretary. But she never keeps a job long because she soon finds that somebody is putting things over on her. Always someone is putting something over on her, and she won't stand for it. We are torn apart by this young woman. What can we do?"

One does what one can do. It is not possible to put a daughter out of the house, but surely, when a young woman can work and support herself, she ought to have that responsibility put squarely upon her own shoulders. If this daughter knew that there were no family, no comfortable bed, no good dinner waiting for her, maybe she would behave better. If not, wouldn't it be a good idea to have the doctor see her? One could insist upon that. Such people have to have some authority rule them. Why not at this time for this purpose? She cannot be mentally healthy.

Her behavior says plainly that she is uncertain of herself and of her relationship to everybody else. This calls for expert medical care, and the sooner the better.

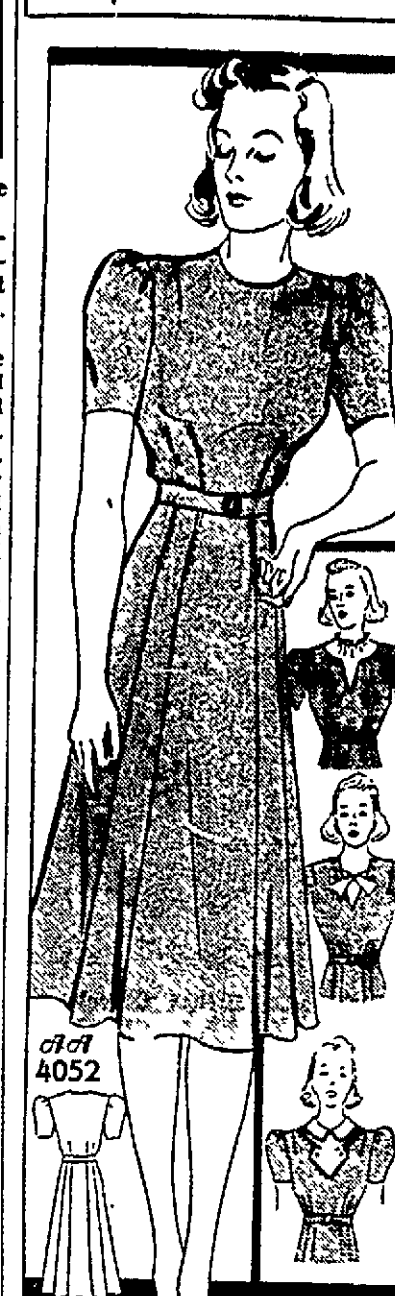

Such patients are difficult because they think they are not ill. To them illness is a matter of the body only. As long as they can stand up and move about, eat their meals and go to sleep when they are ready, they are healthy. But their behavior tells another story. No healthy mind dwells on its grievances, manufacturing new ones when old ones are removed. No healthy mind remains at war with the family and community for long periods.

The treatment for such behavior ought to begin early, as soon as it shows itself. When a child persistently sets himself against his family, his associates and his environment in general, and the usual disciplines fail, it is time to call for help. It is idle to feel disgraced by the necessity for calling in a physician for mental illness. There is no more disgrace in such a condition, and it is often no more serious than that.

Many kinds of mental illness are curable, if taken in hand early. Young people, who behave as this daughter does, usually begin to show their falling in the early teens. That is the time for treatment. It is unwise to allow such marked behavior to go on year after year, steadily growing worse.

Sometimes this is the behavior of a badly spoiled child, a spoiled child, a mentally sick child. It is well, in any case, to do what you can to help the child live more comfortably and successfully. What you do depends upon what you can do. But do something. Don't let the thing go

Tomorrow...
It was then, as soon as Smith left, Noel called Claiborne. She'd been waiting to do it ever since her return to New York. She would say goodbye to Mrs. Marchand—that's what she told herself. Only fate and the Criterion crowd knew when she'd be East again.

"Noel!" Mrs. Marchand's voice was affectionately berating her for the long absence. "We didn't know where to reach you—why didn't you let us know?"

"I should have," Noel was penitent. After all, she had treated this good friend shabbily. "I'm going out to Hollywood tomorrow," she explained. "I'll be working there

Meat Will Keep 72 Hours in Temperature of 42 Degrees

To the butcher goes much of the credit for selling us good meat, but the homemaker can also win her share of approval by taking care of this food so it stays "good."

"Tests have shown that meat will usually keep 72 hours or more if the storage temperature is below 45 degrees Fahrenheit," says Miss Mary Brady, extension nutritionist at the University of Wisconsin. "In the face of these results and when we remember that the temperatures in the sections of home refrigerators range all the way from 42 degrees, in the coldest part, to 52 degrees, in the warmest part, we see that it's best to put the meat in the colder parts. Of course, this food should be kept there from the time it's brought home until it's cooked."

Market to Home
When meat comes from the market the specialist immediately unwraps it and wipes it off, but she does not wash it. After the wiping, it is placed on a clean, dry plate or some other shallow dish, left uncovered or covered lightly with wax paper, and put in the coldest part of the refrigerator. When the home economist says "coldest part," she means the coldest part, other than the freezing unit.

"The meat is left uncovered, or only lightly covered," explains Miss Brady. "So the air can move around it. This air circulation gives the outside of the meat a chance to dry out a little and so helps stop bacteria from growing there."

If we keep meat in an ice box instead of a refrigerator it should still be stored in the coldest part of the box, however, this doesn't mean that it must be placed directly on the ice. When ice was first used for keeping foods many people thought it was best to put meat on the ice, but later it was found that this was not a good idea. The drawbacks of this method are that the

by Angela Lorden

Chapter 29
Visit to Claiborne
"Mr. Feigel wants you to call him on the Coast immediately."

The message came to Noel next day from the New York office. Feigel's probably furious at me, Noel thought as she followed the New York office's suggestion and put in the call for Hollywood. And he was, as soon as he spoke with her.

"Why didn't you stay here, like I told you to?" he asked impatiently.

"I thought you'd forgotten about me," Noel explained half-heartedly. She didn't say, "I couldn't stand it—the waiting in Hollywood when everything was so uncertain."

"Come out—at once!" Feigel's voice was arrogant. "Take the next plane home. We'll sign the contract when you arrive."

"The test was satisfactory then?" Noel's hopes rose.

"Well, so-so," came the non-committal comment. "But we'll be able to do things with you." Then he added casually, "We've bought the screen rights to 'Susan Is Waiting.' Maybe we can fix it so you'll play the part you did on the stage."

"I'd like that," Noel told him, trying not to make her voice sound too elated. She was excited—playing Susan would be perfect for her.

"The boys in New York will get busy right away," Feigel went on plans immediately. "Do what they tell you—they know their business."

"Their business," as Noel discovered almost at once, was keeping her occupied for the next ten hours. Bill Smith of the publicity department was at her hotel an hour after her telephone conversation with Feigel. He took her to a photographer, had dozens of poses made—the proofs were to be rushed through immediately. There was a meeting with eastern executives at the Ambassador. And a few special interviews with writers from the papers and fan magazines.

All the while Noel was thinking: They're funny people, this movie crowd. I haven't signed the contract yet. That didn't seem very businesslike to her. Douglas would have had her name on the dotted line first.

"That about your romance with David Norris?" one of the interviewers asked Noel. "The month that came after. Her whole world had changed—it had been another Noel in the white-carpeted woods when Allan had kissed her for the first time. And she'd known, almost then, that she loved him.

"Noel, my dear," Mrs. Marchand was eagerly welcoming her, "you're looking lovely than ever."

She looked at Noel keenly. She was thinking: There's something new in her eyes though. She's not been happy.

"It's good, just to see you again, to be here with you," Noel's lips brushed against the soft matured cheek much older, there were new lines about her eyes.

"So you're going to be a great movie star?" Mrs. Marchand smiled.

"I wouldn't say that—you can't count on anything in Hollywood. I know that much already."

Noel walked with Mrs. Marchand into the quiet house she had learned to love.

Allan stood waiting in the cool shaded living room. He limped for ward with the aid of a cane. He gave a gasp of expression Noel had seen on that fateful day in the hospital—the day that had made Noel realize she wouldn't marry David.

Noel walked over to him, held out her hand.

Sparing For Time
"Allan, you're looking well." It sounded insane. She could scarcely speak as she watched him—her whole universe there before her—a world she couldn't have, so that nothing else had real meaning for her.

She meant to be careful. She'd kept up the role of good friend, she'd promised herself all the way on the train. Yet when he stood before her, so close once again, her pulse started pounding.

"Noel—you're here." His hand was holding hers tightly. "At last!" his eyes told her. She felt the tension between them. For a moment she forgot the "you're here," Mrs. Marchand—everything but that Allan was here with her.

He was thinner. Noel saw as he let go her hand. His face was pale; the healthy tan had disappeared. But his smile was the same, as endearing as ever and his voice—it would always be music to Noel.

"I've treated you both badly," Noel flushed as she said it. "I've

Quarrel Growing Between Senate And President

Appointments are Cause Of Ill Feeling in Present Congress

Washington—President Roosevelt's current disputes with the senate appear likely to reach the same high intensity that marked his conflict over the supreme court two years ago.

Oddly enough, it was that court contest which helped to create new rifts in the Democratic party now being observed in the strife over relief funds, appointments and a growing list of other things.

The feeling among Democrats on both sides—those for and those against presidential policies—is deep.

The new congress did some clipping on the first presidential measure to come before it. This happened to be relief appropriations, a very touchy political subject which Mr. Roosevelt is now demanding that congress take up again.

In doing this, he is simply grasping the hand-hold that congress swung out to him. It suggested that in an emergency, the president should come back for more money.

New Strife Center

But the field of dispute has since been transferred to appointments. The senate confirmed the president's supreme court nomination on the basis of Justice Frankfurter's qualifications. Then it confirmed some cabinet appointments, some senators voting for Secretary Hopkins and Attorney General Murphy with the idea a president should be allowed to select his own cabinet members.

Right after this came the nominations of Judge Floyd H. Roberts and Thomas R. Amle. The Virginia senators objected to Roberts' taking a judgeship, and the senate overwhelmingly rejected the nomination.

The Wisconsin legislature protected appointment of Amle to the interstate commerce commission. It said he was too radical. The senate has yet to vote on the nomination.

In objecting to Roberts' appointment, the Virginia senators meant they wanted to pick the man who would get the federal judgeship in their state. Mr. Roosevelt had turned down their recommendations, and they charged the governor with the new patronage boss in Virginia.

Precedent that dates back to George Washington's administration supported the stand of the senators. The senate turned down one of Washington's appointments because two Georgia senators objected, and made the rejection stick in spite of a special message by the first president.

The confirmation of appointments applying to only one state is sort of a clubby affair. One senator feels called on to vote for or against the recommendations of the senators from the state involved because he never knows when he will be in exactly the same fix.

thought about you, Allan, hoped you were completely recovered. She would have taken those words back if she could.

"We understand," Mrs. Marchand interrupted. "You've had your own problems." Now it was the older woman who was embarrassed. "Mother!" Allan admonished.

"You saw those stories of me in the papers?" Noel thought she might as well get it over with. "I behaved like a silly young girl. I was too excited at the time to use good judgment."

The atmosphere was strained. Mrs. Marchand was apologetic in her manner. In desperation Noel said:

"This is a lovely place in summer. I've been admiring the countryside as I came up. And I thought it was perfect in winter!" Inadvertently her glance strayed to Allan. Did he remember, too? That afternoon in the woods?

"Why don't you go out on the terrace?" Mrs. Marchand suggested. "I'll have Annie bring tea out there."

She disappeared into the hall. "Would you like to?" It was a polite question from Allan. His eyes were saying other, more serious things. Or did Noel only imagine it?

She walked beside him slowly, trying not to notice how badly he limped.

"Three months more and I can throw this thing away," he said, tapping his cane on the floor.

Then as they sat in the big white chairs on the terrace, his head close to hers, Allan gave her a sad, quizzical look. "So they're going to make you a famous picture star, Noel?"

"I don't know what they'll do with me, once I'm out there. I'm to sign the contract when I get West tomorrow. I'm not crazy about movie work. But I think I like the stage better. But at least it's more certain." She was sparing for time, trying to calm herself.

Allan reached for her hand. He looked at it intently, living in his pain. The touch of his fingers sent an electric shock all through Noel's body. If it could last forever, like this—she was thinking. She heard Allan's voice, husky, caressing:

"Noel, I didn't mean to tell you, but I can't let you go so far away without knowing—"

University Women are Told Not to be Complacent About Importance of Proper Diet

"DON'T BE TOO COMPLACENT about your dietary habits," Mrs. May Reynolds, associate professor of home economics at the University of Wisconsin, warned the women who heard her speak Wednesday night at the monthly meeting of the Appleton branch of the American Association of University Women. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. L. S. Wolfe, 414 N. Union street.

With all its emphasis on vitamins and health foods, the average American diet is still notoriously deficient in Vitamin B-1, surveys show. Mrs. Reynolds said. This vitamin is important, she explained, in that it produces a healthy appetite and helps to overcome disorders of the digestive tract.

Yet the American diet, she pointed out, contains little more of this vitamin than does that of the Orientals, who suffer from beriberi as a result. The reason Americans rarely get the disease is that their diet is rich in so many other essentials.

Vitamin Sources

Sources of Vitamin B-1, Prof. Reynolds said, are whole grain cereals and dark breads. The vitamin is easily destroyed by high temperatures and therefore several cereal breakfast foods which claim to be whole grain may actually have no Vitamin B-1 because it may have been lost in the various processes by which the breakfast food is made.

Good old-fashioned oatmeal is a rich source of the vitamin, however, and Prof. Reynolds advised wider use of it.

Most Americans receive all the calories and proteins they need in their food, she continued. Meals are usually built around meat, one of the chief protein-giving foods. But there is often deficiency in minerals, especially calcium and iron, and some of the vitamins.

Vitamin A, she explained, is found in such foods as whole milk, butter, cream, cheese made from whole milk, green, leafy vegetables and yellow vegetables. Its relation to infection has been exaggerated, she said, but it is important for the health of the skin and mucous membranes and essential for the regeneration of pigment in the retina of the eye.

Prevents Scurvy

Vitamin C, with which America became familiar through the California fruit growers, is found chiefly in the citrus fruits, Mrs. Reynolds said. It prevents scurvy and helps in the building of good teeth and gums.

Vitamin B-2 or G is essential for growth and vitality and occurs in milk and green leafy vegetables.

Declaring that spending enough money for food did not insure the adequacy of a diet, Prof. Reynolds distributed a pamphlet, "Diets to Fit the Family Income," published by the United States department of agriculture, showing that a family can be well nourished on a small income as well as a large one.

She said of the vitamin concentrates now so widely sold that there were some cases in which they were necessary, but that there was danger that persons who took them would relax in watching their diet and leave out vital essentials.

At the business session which preceded the lecture, Mrs. H. S. Craig, Mrs. L. S. Wolfe and Miss Kezia Manifold were named to the nominating committee and Mrs. Walter Brummund, Miss Adela Klumb, Mrs. C. E. Saecker and Mrs. E. F. Mielke, to the budget committee.

Lenten Institute Begins at Presbyterian Church Feb. 22

BEGINNING the first Wednesday night in Lent, Feb. 22, and continuing weekly thereafter until the week before Palm Sunday, adult members of Memorial Presbyterian church and their friends will participate in a Lenten institute. Each Wednesday night for five weeks there will be a fellowship supper at 6:15, worship in the sanctuary at 7 o'clock and lecture and discussion groups at 7:30.

At the worship services the Rev. Robert K. Bell will have as his theme "The Christian Quest." The quest for God through friendship, truth, beauty, knowledge and sacrifice will be discussed, in the order named, at the five services.

The persons participating then will have the opportunity of attending one of four lecture and discussion groups, whichever is of greatest interest to them.

Group 1, which will devote its study to literature, will feature five book reviews by Mrs. Robert K. Bell. On Feb. 22 she will review "Only Yesterday," by Frederick Lewis Allen; on March 1, "Madame Curie," by Eve Curie; on March 15, "With Malice Toward Some," by Margaret Halsey; on March 22, "The Horse-and-Buggy Doctor," by Dr. Arthur E. Hertzler; and on March 29, "Song of Years," by Bess Streeter Aldrich.

Group 2, whose subject is missions, is being sponsored by the Missionary society of the church and will be led by members of the society. The five lectures will be based on the book, "The American City and Its Church," by Samuel Kinchloe. On Feb. 22 Mrs. F. W. Schneider will discuss "The City and the Problems of Its People." Mrs. John Oliver will discuss "The Family in the City" on March 1; Mrs. George Ballard, "What Cities do to Churches," on March 15; Mrs. S. W. Murphy, "What Churches do for Cities," on March 22; and Mrs. A. W. Bohn, "The Primary Work of Churches," on March 29.

Group 3, which has for its subject "Religion and Life," will have a series of lectures and discussions on the relationship between religion and the various areas of life. The leaders are representative men of their fields and members of the church.

Harold Heller will be the first speaker, discussing "Science and Religion" on Feb. 22; Dr. Milton C. Townner will speak on "Character and Religion" March 1; Clarence E. Deakins, "Music and Religion," March 15; Ben J. Rohan, "Education and Religion," March 22; and F. W. Clippinger, "Literature and Religion," March 29.

Personality adjustment will be studied by Group 4. The Rev. Robert K. Bell will be the leader, and the program will include discussions leading toward a well-balanced Christian personality, using as basic material the Sermon on the Mount and the teachings of psychology.

The subjects at the five meetings will be "The Mastery of Fear," "Be Glad You Feel Inferior," "Keeping Mentally Fit," "Act Your Age Emotionally" and "The Marks of a Well-Balanced Personality."

The fellowship supper which will precede the worship services and study groups will have an international flavor. ## 'Prince Igor' Selections in Choir Program

DANCES of wild men, of young girls and boys, of slave girls and prisoners; dances in praise of the great Khan and a wild general dance involving vigorous and captivating rhythms—such is the general outline of Borodin's "Polovetzian Dances" from "Prince Igor" chosen by Dean Waterman for the final group of the Lawrence choir's home concert. These dances, replete with mad and intoxicating rhythms, occur, interspersed with choral parts, in the second act of the opera. The occasion for the dances in the opera is the festival which Konchak Kahn, Chief of the Polovetsi Nomads, has prepared to entertain the captured warrior, Prince Igor.

Donald Gerlach, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Gerlach, 702 N. Oneida street, senior student at the conservatory, will play the piano transcription of the orchestral portion of the dances. He also will accompany the choir in the Finale from Gilbert and Sullivan's "Gondoliers" and the "Chorus of the Philistines" from Saint-Saens' "Samson and Delilah."

The choir now is entering upon its final week of rehearsals, which are being conducted by Dean Waterman at Peabody hall. Aside from general rehearsals, which are scheduled daily, frequent part rehearsals also are being held.

The concert is scheduled for Thursday evening, Feb. 16, at the Lawrence Memorial chapel. Tickets are now on sale at Belling's Drug store.

Circle 6 of First Congregational church had its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ray Eichelberger, S. Memorial drive. Mrs. Eichelberger is captain of the circle.

League to Raise Birds and Fish

Weyauwega Sportsmen Chart Plans to Improve White Lake

Objectives for 1939 were outlined at a meeting of the Weyauwega Conservation League at its first meeting last night at Weyauwega.

The group heard R. C. Kirkpatrick, Wausau, discuss the work of the forestry division of the Wisconsin Conservation department. He also showed motion pictures of forest fires and the department's methods of fighting them.

The league in 1939 plans to rear and release 600 pheasants in the vicinity of Weyauwega, to promote a mature bass and pan fish planting program, and to run fresh water from the Little Wolf river into White Lake.

Cooperation from Manawa and Waukegan has been promised and the league this month is making an effort to build its membership to 300 persons.

The White Lake improvement will be discussed at a meeting at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Hotel Dobbins. Property owners near the lake, county board members, conservation department members and others interested are expected to attend.

Committees for all the projects in mind will be appointed as soon as the membership drive is completed.

New Bill Carries Lethal Blow for LaFollette Party

Would Join State and Presidential Ballots in Presidential Years

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—A measure designed to continue the subjugation of the LaFollette Progressive party which the Republicans began pretty effectively last November 8 caused hardly a ripple of interest at a hearing which was observed by several dozen other legislative hearings at the capitol yesterday.

From a political party standpoint the bill is the most important introduced this session and is frankly designed to make rehabilitation of the Progressive party impossible before 1942 at least.

Introduced by Assemblymen Budlong of Marinette, Fitzsimmons of Fond du Lac, Grosvenor of Kenosha, Peterson of Berlin, Murray and Tolan of Milwaukee, all leaders of the Democratic-Republican Coalition majority, the bill proposes to change the election laws to join the state and the national ballots in presidential years.

Lose Straight Votes
The result, the sponsors believe, since the Progressives have no presidential ticket, would be to reduce the number of Progressive votes by facilitating the voting of "straight" tickets in the Republican and Democratic columns.

Analysts who studied the Wisconsin Republican landslide last fall concluded generally that an unusual number of voters cast "straight" votes, that is, they marked the ballots at the head of the column, indicating their choice for the whole party slate of their choice.

In presidential election years, however, the ballots for presidential electors and for state-county officers are separate under present election law. Thus the voter chooses his party twice, first on the national ballot, then on the state-county ballot.

By joining the two into a single ballot, the conservative Coalitionists believe, the probability that Progressives will get voters who voted Republican or Democratic in the national election to enter their column in the state and county elections will be lessened.

The hearing drew no representatives of the public and not a single representative of the Progressive party which will suffer mightily, if the measure is passed, was present.

Battle Coming
Experienced capital observers foresaw, however, that the bill will mean bitter battling on the floor of the legislature when it is reported for passage. Because of the admittedly weak present position of the Progressive party, the change in the presidential year ballots would be a stiff blow to overcome, in addition to the necessary recovery of the voting power which was lost to the Republicans last fall.

In some quarters it was even foreseen, on the assumption of passage of the measure, that it would hasten the demolition of the Progressive party which its enemies have been predicting for it, and the return of LaFollette followers to the Republican fold from which they bolted nearly five years ago.

Man Changes Pleas to Misconduct Charges

Alfonso Serwe, alias Al J. Pickler, 44 303 N. Division street, changed pleas of not guilty to guilty to a charge of lewd and lascivious conduct and nolo contendere to a charge of adultery in municipal court of Judge Thomas H. Ryan this morning. He was fined $100 and costs with an alternative of 90 days in the county detention camp on the first charge and 1 to 3 years on the latter. The latter sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation to the state board of control.

Eva Gurnee, alias Mrs. Eva Portman, 20, 347 W. Foster street, who last week pleaded guilty to similar charges, was sentenced to six months in the county jail for lewd and lascivious conduct and to 1 to 3 years at the industrial home for women at Taycheedah on the adultery charge. The sentences will run concurrently.

City police made the arrests.

was named to the federal district court in Southern New York in 1930. Meanwhile, the senate commerce committee voted to hold closed hearings on the qualifications of 11 men the president has nominated for aviation and maritime posts.

One of the 11 men Mr. Roosevelt has suggested for key places in maritime and aviation agencies figured in the committee decision to conduct their investigation of the appointees in private.

Without designating the man involved, Chairman Bailey (D-N. C.) said "charges have been filed against one of the 11 appointees that may raise a question as to senate confirmation."

As a result, Bailey said, all eleven would be invited to appear Saturday before an executive session of a subcommittee headed by Senator Clark (D-Mo.)

Senator Glass used the word "probe" in reference to the judgeship controversy.

The president also named Frank A. Picard of Michigan to a newly created district court judgeship for the Eastern district of Michigan.

Other nominations included J. Haden Aldredge of Alabama to be a member of the interstate commerce commission to succeed Frank McManamy, whose term has expired.

William E. Lee of Idaho was named for another term on the interstate commerce commission.

The 81-year-old Glass declared in a statement last night that the president had failed to accord the Virginia senators "the common courtesy" of discussing with them his appointment of Floyd H. Roberts to the federal bench in Virginia.

He was replying to a presidential letter to Roberts which criticized the senate for refusing to confirm the nomination.

Glass and his colleague, Senator Byrd (D-Va.), had endorsed A. C. Buchanan, a state judge, and Frank Tavenner, assistant federal attorney for the position. They had described Roberts' selection as "personally offensive."

Glass' Statement
Discussing Buchanan, Glass said in his seven-page statement: "It is to be deplored from every point of view that he should have been rejected by the appointive power merely through a desire to 'purge' the junior senator (Byrd) next year and the senior senator of Virginia later if I should live longer than the intrigues hope."

There have been reports that the organization of Governor James H. Price of Virginia will put a candidate in the field against Byrd in 1940. Glass' term expires in 1943.

The statement by Glass put the next move in the controversy up to the president, who must nominate another for the judgeship.

Glass said he did not recall ever having met Judge Buchanan and declared, "this is no fight for patronage. I do not care a tinker's dam for patronage."

He said the Virginia senators were willing to accept "any capable nominee of the president who is not willing to concede to the governor of Virginia on a bitterly hostile congressmen the right to veto the suggestions by the senators of men of the highest character and ability."

Glass has contended that the president had given Governor Price the power of vetoing his and Byrd's recommendations for appointments.

In response to a letter, Glass said, Mr. Roosevelt once urged him to continue making such recommendations.

Cold Wave Veers To North; Snow, Milder, Forecast

Strong East Wind Lashes City; Mercury at 18 Today

A powerful east wind that blew gusts of snow in people's faces and whipped up big drifts in the country replaced the sub-zero spell that was supposed to settle down on Appleton and vicinity today.

The Associated Press reported that the cold wave predicted for Wisconsin had detoured to the north today, saving the state from what was expected to be the year's lowest temperature. The cold wave was moving east from the Pacific towards the Atlantic seaboard when the wind shifted to the northeast and pushed the sub-zero mass over Ontario and central Canada.

Snow tonight and tomorrow, with slowly rising temperature, is the forecast for the state issued by the Milwaukee bureau today. The thermometer was on its way down last evening, and then suddenly changed its mind and began climbing back up. It hit a 24-hour low at 8 o'clock last night when it registered five above zero.

The mercury was back up to 10 above at 6 o'clock this morning. Early this afternoon the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 18 degrees.

Temperatures in Canada at 6:30 this morning included 46 below at Medicine Hat, Alberta; 42 below at Calgary, Alberta, and 32 below at Sioux Lookout, Ont.

A blizzard hampered miners digging into snowbanks at Bingham, Utah, for three bodies believed buried where a woman was killed in an avalanche late yesterday.

The storm blocked Utah's main highways and caused derailment of a branch-line passenger train.

In southern California the storm whitened the foothill boundaries of orange groves with snow and scattered a few flakes on downtown Los Angeles. The flurry was the first there since 1931. Mountain roads were blocked by snow and 179 prisoners at the state institution for women were isolated. Shipping was imperilled.

Sleet and rain fell in central Illinois and coated highways with a dangerous glaze. The Chicago Motor club reported the most serious stricken areas around Quincy, Galena, Kewanee and Canton and advised against motor travel.

DEATHS

HALL FUNERAL
Funeral services for Mrs. Caroline Hall, who died Sunday at the home of her son, H. L. Hall, 1015 N. Drew street, were held at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the residence with the Rev. Theodore Marth, pastor of the Zion Lutheran church, in charge. Burial will be in the Glenzi cemetery at Fond du Lac. Bearers were Raymond Hall, William and Orville Koch, Emil Bergel, Melvin Hanson and Hilgard Weiss.

BUHTZ FUNERAL
The funeral of Herman Buhtz, 79, 218 S. Memorial drive, was held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Joseph's church. Burial services were held in the chapel at St. Joseph's cemetery. Bearers were Frank and William Rammer, George Kneupple, Anton Odidio, Rudolph Hoffman, and Herbert Mielke.

That speculation is running high in city hall and other places interested in the spring primary, on how many candidates will take out nomination papers for aldermanic posts before the deadline, Feb. 22. Four, five and six-way races have developed in many of the wards with a total of 66 candidates seeking office. Bets on the final score have been offered around town.

Dairy Industry Spokesmen Urge Delay on Measure

Would Continue Present Agriculture and Markets Setup

Madison—Three dairy industry spokesmen asked the assembly agriculture committee yesterday to delay action on the Daugs bill continuing the present department of agriculture and markets setup of an advisory board and director.

Time for further study and suggestion was urged by E. R. Eckwright, Spooner, of the Wisconsin Buttermakers' association; E. Whitling, Stevens Point, of the Wisconsin Cheesemakers' association, and S. B. Cook, Cumberland, of the Wisconsin Cooperative Creameries Federation.

Under the Bolens bill, passed yesterday in the senate and on its way to become law, the three-man commission would be restored as it existed before the LaFollette reorganization act of 1937.

Want Specific Provisions
The three dairymen made clear, however, they had no quarrel with the present seven-man policy-making group and Director Ralph Ammon but wanted inclusion in the bill of more specific provisions for the dairy industry.

A possible answer to their criticism of the Daugs bill was contained in an amendment by Chairman Ora R. Rice, (R), Delavan, providing for a division of dairy and food along with separate divisions of markets, agriculture, and grain and warehouses within the department.

Palmer F. Daugs, (D), of Ft. Atkinson, said his bill would allow the governor to appoint seven men. Under Ammon, he declared, he had heard less criticism of the department than at any time.

tier at Le Perthus, and headed into France for an undetermined destination.

Surrounded by militiamen, the premier started westward. The road he took twisted eventually back into Spain. It was considered possible in circles close to the premier that he was taking a brief trip into the small area of Catalonia left to government control.

Supporters of Negrin said he and Miaja were in complete agreement to carry on the war in the central zone.

United on Policy
Countering reports that Miaja had been involved in negotiations for a separate peace with Generalissimo Franco, members of Negrin's official party said the premier and Miaja had been in communication by radio and were "closer than ever" as far as policy was concerned.

They said reports Miaja had broken with Negrin and entered separate peace talks were part of a "French-British" attempt to force the Spanish government to surrender unconditionally.

Maintenance of communications between northern Spain and the central zone was demonstrated by Madrid communiques giving details of the insurgent air raid yesterday on the border town of Puigcerda. The raid was described as taking "numerous victims."

At the border, Spanish officials said 1,000 persons were killed in the Puigcerda bombardment, but French border authorities put the casualties at few more than 100.

The stream of civilian refugees had almost dried up with about 250,000 persons estimated to have entered France since the fall of Barcelona Jan. 26.

Burgos, Spain—(AP)—Spanish insurgents today announced landing of their troops on the Balearic island of Minorca, for whose surrender negotiations with the government had been proceeding aboard the British cruiser Devonshire.

The landing on the strategic island was said to have developed an uprising of Spanish government troops who gained mastery over a large part of its area.

The announcement said the insurgents landed at Ciudadela, on the west coast of Minorca, and were joined by units of the local garrison which had risen against the government authorities.

London—(AP)—Spanish government officials today abandoned Minorca, leaving aboard the British cruiser Devonshire, giving rise to belief that the strategic, well-fortified Mediterranean island had been surrendered to the insurgent regime.

British foreign office officials said the 450 refugees were aboard the Devonshire when she put out to sea from Port Mahon and acknowledged that they probably were government officials and "other persons wanted by the insurgents."

Minorca, which a British armament firm helped fortify, is the only principal island of the Spanish Balearic group which the government has held since early in the war. The insurgents early in the conflict seized Mallorca, from which Italian airplanes have operated, and Ibiza, other islands of the group.

The 9,750-ton Devonshire put into Port Mahon, Minorca's harbor, Tuesday. This was believed to be a measure to forestall any occupation of the island in which Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's

Italians or German allies would participate.

Demands Surrender
Aboard was the count of San Luis, insurgent military governor of Mallorca, bearing a demand for Minorca's immediate surrender. At Port Mahon government negotiators boarded the cruiser.

It was understood she then put out to sea to permit the parley to go forward on neutral territory.

Negotiations for safe conduct for the Minorca officials then occurred and it was believed here that the insurgent envoy agreed to permit this in return for surrender of the island.

Britain and France have been anxious about the fate of Minorca, which lies on their vital Mediterranean communications lines and is regarded by some as more important strategically than Mallorca.

Whether the British did not know whether Franco's Juan Negrin of the Spanish government was aware of the negotiations but asserted the French government had been informed.

Ready To Attack
They declared the Spanish insurgents had asked the British government to convey the count of San Luis to Minorca for the purpose of seeing whether the island wanted to surrender rather than meet a carefully-prepared insurgent attack.

The British understood that the insurgents had a force of 10,000 men and concentrations of warplanes and warships ready to start an attack.

The British government offered to supply all the warships needed to remove the entire population of the island provided the Spanish negotiators agreed this should be done. British officials insisted there was no question of Britain interfering in the negotiations and they said no British diplomat was aboard while the count conferred with government authorities.

Severe Pain in Abdomen May Be Appendicitis, Bulletin Says

Madison — "Physicians should not be taken for severe abdominal pain. The cause might be appendicitis," stated the State Medical society in its health bulletin received today.

"There are three causes of appendicitis:

1. Disease — producing germs from inside the intestinal tract may enter the appendix and set up an inflammation.
2. Diseased teeth or tonsils may cause appendicitis, or the appendix may become involved following a general sickness such as measles, mumps, chicken pox, scarlet fever, influenza and others.
3. If a nearby organ, such as the right ovary or the right Fallopian tube in a female, is infected, the inflammation may spread to the appendix.

"The appendix is a wormlike organ, about three to five inches long, attached to the large intestine. Many people have the idea that seeds cause appendicitis; however, by laboratory methods it has been found that this idea is incorrect. Seeds are rarely the cause of appendicitis. Heavy lifting, straining or a blow on the abdomen may cause an acute attack of appendicitis, but even this is practically impossible unless the appendix was already in an unhealthy condition.

"There are two types of appendicitis: acute and chronic. By acute is meant sudden. In acute appendicitis any one or all of the following symptoms may be present. Pain is usually the first and outstanding symptom. It may be in the right lower section of the abdomen, where the appendix is located usually, but the pain is frequently in the pit of the stomach, the area directly above the navel. It is cramp-like, and finally after a few hours, it goes down to the right lower section of the abdomen. As a rule, the pain gradually becomes more severe and constant. Usually after the beginning of the pain there is a feeling of nausea. Often the patient vomits. Chills and fever may be present, and constipation frequently is. Another symptom which is not uncommon is the belching of gas.

"Chronic or recurrent appendicitis has a wide variety of symptoms. By chronic is meant an infection lasting over a period of time. Some of the symptoms of chronic appendicitis are similar to those of acute appendicitis, but they appear in a milder form. In many cases the patient has had no pain or discomfort in the region of the appendix but consults his doctor because of so-called indigestion or stomach trouble. An abscessed tooth, even though it gives no discomfort, may produce poisons which can be carried to other organs of the body, thus causing harm. In the same way chronic appendicitis may produce poisons which may be the cause of rheumatism, neuritis, heart trouble and many other ailments. A well-recognized fact is that chronic appendicitis can lead to an ulcer of the stomach, gallbladder disease and gall stones.

"Physicians should not be taken when severe abdominal pain is present as the cause of this pain might be appendicitis. The taking of castor oil or other physics will set up a drastic action on the inflamed appendix and may cause it to burst, producing peritonitis. An enema, commonly known as a rectal injection, can be taken under such circumstances to get the desired results and at the same time cause the patient no harm. Surgical removal of the appendix is the only treatment.

"The death rate of appendicitis has increased one-third in the last ten years. Yet this situation can be prevented. These mortalities are due mostly to the taking of physics and the delay in having an operation. An abdominal pain which persists for more than three hours is usually serious. Go to bed. Don't take a physic. Don't delay in calling your physician. Have an immediate operation if your physician so advises."

Ripon Professor Lands Roosevelt Foreign Policy

Oceans Can't Protect U. S.
Forever, Dr. Freund
Tells Club

Neenah—Declaring that Roosevelt's foreign policy was the clearest thing any statesman could do because dictators like Hitler and Mussolini can't be talked to in gentlemen's language, Dr. Ludwig Freund, Ripon professor of business and economics, told the members of the Twin City Business and Professional Women's club Wednesday evening in Hotel Menasha against the thought that oceans can protect United States forever from dictators abroad. "All ready those dictators are boring from within and in nearby countries, Mexico and South America. If they subdue their neighbors abroad, they won't stop."

Dr. Freund's lecture last evening was the first of a series of two on "The World in Turmoil." He discussed intellectual, spiritual, moral and social conditions in the world that make for turmoil apparent today and at the March lecture plans to discuss the actual forces on the international political scene.

While he contended that cooperation with the democracies of the world was necessary to stop dictators, Dr. Freund did offer one small hopeful sign—"the emerging unity of Germany of a growing discontent among peoples, even among the youth. This discontent is also apparent in Russia."

Pessimism at Root

Declaring that it was difficult to make Americans understand the difference between themselves and Europeans, Dr. Freund contended that the basis difference can be summarized in one word—pessimism. "Americans are all optimists and it is because you have never had a real profound tragedy. You have had your crises, depressions, good and bad luck but you have come out on top. You were expanding and developing when Europe was already stagnant. The pessimism of Europe as well as the optimism of America expresses itself in thought, philosophy, sociology, economics and theology as well as personal relations of the people and countries."

Reflected in Politics

This void in cultural life, declared the speaker, was reflected in the field of politics through the years and it is the reason why dictatorship is possible in Germany and Italy.

Discussing planned economy, the speaker contended that it was possible only in dictatorships and that anything can be done with a nation when its people are in despair. "Dictatorships make life standards. There are no problems. Integration is simple. Force is an important thing, and that is why dictatorships are superior to democracies in wartime. Democracies flourish best in peacetime and are unprepared in time of war. Hitler, in his book Mein Kampf, page 195 of the German edition, declares 'war must be executed with utmost rapidity. The most brutal methods are the most humane.'"

The speaker also discussed the organizations, "Germans Abroad" which for organization and espionage action is very efficient. "The Communist International is a child's play along side of it. The Germans are told that they belong to Germany first, to the country that they have become citizens, second."

"The German born of other countries are told how to behave in cases of emergency and what actions to make for Germany."

Menasha Woman Gets Divorce at Oshkosh

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh — Anne Ottman, Menasha, was granted a divorce from Edwin Ottman, Menasha, by Judge D. E. McDonald in county court here yesterday afternoon.

Charging cruelty and inhuman treatment, Mrs. Ottman was granted custody of the three children, aged 14, 12 and 11, in addition to $50 per month alimony until September 1, 1939. After that time she will receive $70 per month for the children's custody.

The couple was married in Menasha, May 22, 1923. Twice before, in the fall of 1924 and again in August 1928, the plaintiff started divorce action, but reconciliation was effected soon after each proceeding started.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and display advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street, and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for display advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or telephoned. Orders for classified advertising should be placed by telephoning 543 in Appleton, and the cost of the telephone call will be rebated.

The Twin Cities office closes at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Ed Miller, local WPA recreational director, is seeking more skating stars to bolster Menasha's chances in the events. The city races were held last Saturday.

All boys making the trip have been requested to meet at the Memorial building at 12:15 Saturday afternoon. One or two more cars can be used to transport the boys to and from Oshkosh. Any volunteers may contact Kenneth Carrick at the Memorial building before Saturday.

Wrestling, Boxing Intramural Tests Slated at Neenah

Varsity Squads to be Named From Tourney Participants

Neenah — Intramural wrestling and boxing tournaments will be held at Neenah High school next week, according to George Christoph, wrestling coach, Christoph and Harvey Leaman, boxing coach, will be in charge of the tournaments.

From the participants in the tournament will be selected the first and second teams for the boxing and wrestling squads this year.

The wrestling championship which Neenah has claimed for the year ended the squads having lost only one match during that period, is likely to be absent at the end of the season unless Coach Christoph's inexperienced matmen show some rapid development, he reported today. The coach who usually has four or five lettermen as a nucleus around which to build a team has only one letterman returning from last year's squad, John Palmer.

The matmen will face another tough schedule this season.

7 Matches Scheduled

Prospects for the boxing season are brighter this year, however, but the squad faces a tough season, seven matches already having been scheduled. Four lettermen are returning to the squad this year, Howard Craddock, Robert Kloss, Dudley Young, captain, and Robert Vanderwalke.

Matches which have been scheduled are: Feb. 23, Neenah at Kaukauna; Feb. 28, Kaukauna at Neenah; March 7, Neenah at Oshkosh; March 13, Little Chute at Neenah; March 17, Neenah at Menasha; March 21, Neenah at Little Chute; March 31, Waupun at Neenah; and April 4, Neenah at Mariou. A return match with Menasha St. Mary will be scheduled later.

Candidates for both the boxing and wrestling teams are working out daily at the Roosevelt school gymnasium.

Panthers 3 6

Wildcats 3 6

Lions 3 6

Menasha — League leaders were upset in Menasha Junior High school intramural basketball league games last Friday at Butte des Morts gymnasium. Both the Greyhounds and the Badgers, holding the No. 1 and 2 positions in the league, were defeated.

The Greyhounds held onto first place even though they dropped a 19 to 17 decision to the Lions. The Lions climbed into a 3-way tie for the cellar position through their victory. Elzer Marx counted 10 points for the Lions while Adams had three baskets. For the Greyhounds Calder had four baskets and Wideman had two.

The victory enabled the Hyenas to take third place in the league standings. Geibel had two baskets for the Hyenas while Block, Roca, Miller and Wells had one each. Carrick scored all of the points for the Badgers on two free throws.

The Wildcats defeated the Panthers 17 to 13 after two overtime periods. Britke had seven points for the Wildcats while Ohlroge had three baskets. Heckrodt counted three free throws for the winners. For the Panthers, Dorow had six points.

Neenah Police Wallop County Force in Feature Cage Contest

Neenah — Despite Johnny "Man Mountain" Hughes' solid defense, the Neenah police department basketball team walloped the Winnebago county police force quintet, 27 to 7, in a feature game last night at Roosevelt school gymnasium.

The only difference between the conflict and a wrestling match was that no holds were barred in the basketball tilt. The lawmen, with the exception of Hughes, did much more wrestling than basketball, and Hughes just stood in one spot and waited until somebody bumped into him and then bounced on the floor.

Clarence Toeppeler of the Neenah aggregation was high scorer. He made 11 points on five baskets and a free throw. Neenah took an early lead, holding an 8 to 2 margin at the half. The county players didn't score again until the final quarter when they got five points. Captain Irving Stulp collected four points for the county force. He made two long shots. County Clerk A. E. Hedke and Earl Haase refereed the match.

Two Neenah Basketball League games were played with Neenah Police counting a 28 to 21 victory over the Business Men and News-Times defeating the Neenah Merchants, 36 to 16.

Bouressa starred for the Police five, scoring 15 points on six baskets and four free throws. Hahl and Bunker paced the Business Men, the former netting nine points and the latter eight.

The Police overcame a 7 to 2 margin at the end of the first quarter and held a 17 to 13 advantage at the half. They scored eight points during the third quarter while restricting the Business Men to two.

News-Times had little trouble downing the Merchants, holding a 19 to 3 lead at the half. Krueger starred for the winners with 13 points on six baskets and a free throw.

Neenah — C. F. Hedges, superintendent of Neenah schools, gave a report on the 3-year investigation of public schools in New York state under the direction of Dr. Luther H. Gulick at a meeting of Neenah High school teachers last night at Kimberly school.

Mr. Hedges listed the deficiencies of the education system and the recommendations suggested in the report. He brought out that one of the recommendations was the abolishment of the New York regent examination system. The report severely condemned the examination system which has caused considerable controversy among educators for years.

Defects of the systems which Mr. Hedges listed were: "Educational system has not yet adjusted its program to carry the new load imposed by the coming into the school of all children of all people, particularly into the high school, education has not been redesigned to fit boys and girls for the new work conditions in the world; school program does not recognize increased difficulties of becoming a good citizen; the educational system has not caught up with the flood of new scientific knowledge about the natural and social world; education has not planned for wise use of leisure time, and the citizens and the school leaders do not have a specific agreed upon goal."

Recommendations in the report which were listed by Mr. Hedges were: "High school education to begin at the end of the sixth grade and continue through the fourteenth grade, eight years of high school; instead of teaching pupils a specific trade in vocational schools, schools should give pupils a sound general knowledge; the central high school objective should be general education devoted up to the twelfth grade to the study of general science, human relations, community life, world history, general mathematics and the arts and these should be presented as they are encountered in life and not merely as credits for college entrance."

Greater emphasis on character building and training for dynamic citizenship is essential; guidance service should be available in all schools; more emphasis on mental and emotional health; emphasis on sports and play should be placed on those activities which have adult carry-over value, and a definite program of adult education."

Mr. Hedges pointed out that the report involved 117 isolated studies, interviews with 45,000 educators, parents, teachers and employers.

It Is Said--

That ineligibility has hampered a number of athletic teams but the latest is the innovation of John Novakowski in the Menasha Junior High school intramural basketball league. Several teams have lost games because their star players were declared ineligible because they failed to score a passing grade in spelling. The players are suspended for a week whenever they fail to make the grade.

Kaatz Wins Title in Checkers Tournament

Neenah — D. Kaatz won the championship in the senior checkers tournament and Cass capped the title in the sophomore chess tournament in the Neenah High school intramural sports activities Wednesday afternoon in the gymnasium.

Kaatz defeated C. Loehning in the finals to cop the crown. He advanced to the finals when he defeated V. Metz in the semifinals, and Loehning moved into final play when he won from P. Opitz.

In the quarterfinals, Loehning won from L. Peterson, Kaatz defeated H. Mulvey and Metz won from O. Schultz.

Cass defeated R. Young to cop the title in the chess tournament. He had defeated Haselow in the semifinals and H. Young in the quarterfinals. R. Young defeated McKenzie.

5 Skaters Named for Sturgeon Bay Tourney

Neenah — A team of five skaters has been selected to represent Neenah High school in the Sturgeon Bay Ice carnival Saturday afternoon at Sturgeon Bay. The skaters were winners in events in the Neenah High school carnival last Saturday.

They are Roman Zimmerman, Blase Anderson, Edward Winkelmann, Donald Jase, and Oliver Babbits. Marvin Olson, hockey coach, will accompany the team.

The boys will enter in the following events: 100-yard, 220-yard, 440-yard dash, half mile, mile, barrel jumping, relay and fancy skating.

Kloepfel Challenges Skaters of Near Age

Menasha — Otto C. Kloepfel, Menasha's old-time skater, has issued a challenge to any Oshkosh skater near his age for a special half mile race Saturday afternoon in connection with the county speed races. Otto will be willing to go to Oshkosh on Sunday when the dog races and other skating events are to be staged too if he can find some competition. Otto issued a similar challenge before a skating meet at New London and the officials there replied that the New London men of Otto's age were glad to be able to walk, let alone to skate.

Twin City V.N.A. Hears Report on January Activity

Staff Made 723 Calls During January, Association Is Told

Neenah—Miss Lydia Bouressa, visiting nurse supervisor, reported a total of 723 calls by the staff during the month of January, an average of 7.9 visits per day, at the Twin City Visiting Nurse association January meeting Wednesday morning in the Neenah-Menasha Y.W.C.A. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Dan Kimbly presided.

Miss Bouressa also reported that the length of time per visit was 49.3 minutes. She also presented a report of the Nurses' Institute held in Wausau last month which Miss Anita Jones of the New York City maternity center conducted. Miss Jones emphasized the need for better pre-natal and post-natal care throughout the entire country, saying that the death rate of mothers has increased since 1915. Miss Jones, the supervisor told board members, declared that the rate can be lowered in several ways, one of the most important being early and constant visits to the doctor during pregnancy. "Good pre-natal care is preventive obstetrics."

Dental Clinics

Four dental clinics were held in Neenah in January with 21 cases cared for and five dental clinics with 32 cared for were held in Menasha. Sixteen children attended the health center Jan. 17. The next center will be Feb. 21 in Roosevelt school.

Announcement was made of a tea Tuesday, Feb. 14 at the home of Mrs. Donald Turner to which members of the board and auxiliary and the nursing staff will be invited. Mrs. Joan McGilligan Hoffman will read.

Mrs. W. Miner of the educational committee read a short article on the organization of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

Neenah Keyed for Shawano Struggle

Rockets Have Chance to Tie for N. E. W. Conference Lead

FRIDAY'S GAMES
Shawano at Neenah.
Menasha at Kaukauna.
West DePere at New London.

NEENAH — The championship of the Northwestern Wisconsin conference will be at stake Friday night when the Neenah Red Rockets clash with the league-leading Shawano Indians in the Neenah gymnasium.

The Indians, defending champions, are undefeated this season, having won nine straight games, while the Rockets are in second place with eight wins against one defeat. Their loss was to Shawano.

The largest crowd of the season is expected to attend the highly touted conflict and reserve seats are on sale.

Because of their record, as well as one victory over the Rockets, the Indians are favored slightly, but Neenah is considered to have a good chance to topple the Shawano five. Neenah has set a fast pace since the first Shawano game, winning games by wide margins. Shawano, on the other hand, has been edging out wins by close margins in its last few games.

CLIMAX GAME

Shawano — The climax game of the Northwestern Wisconsin conference's Western division will be presented at Neenah Friday night when the league-leading, undefeated Shawano Indians tangle with the second-place Red Rockets of Neenah. Hanging on the outcome, in all probability, is the championship of the conference.

At least once in a season the conference produces a natural and Shawano at Neenah, this year, undisputedly holds that distinction. The Maroon and Black of Shawano, defending state Class B champions, have an even dozen wins to their credit, nine of them in conference play. With Neenah, Kaukauna and West DePere yet to play, they stand an excellent chance of completing a regular season of play with an unmarred record — if they can get by the powerful Neenah aggregation. Going back into the record, the Dillmans have been unbeaten in 26 starts, ever since a Menasha defeat in January, 1938.

Smooth Offense
The Red Rockets, however, remain only one game behind them in the conference standings, and earned the respect of Shawano fans with their smooth offense in a previous game here, in a battle finally won by Shawano, 21-26. The advantage of the home floor for Neenah, however, will probably send the two teams into the game with an even-money break.

Billy Reed, scoring colossus of the conference who holds the record with 130 points scored in Shawano's nine victories, will lead the Indians into battle, and the game will find them in full strength with the exception of Merle Cooper, tall forward who has a knee injury. ## Chaffin Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

Thursday, Feb. 9, 1939
Appleton Post-Crescent

Dear Mac:

Now I can see why you get sick. Another week of this and I'll crawl in bed myself. Boy! Am I in trouble!

You see, 't'other night we ran a picture of Eddie Stearnard and I published his industrial league average as 178.6, the latest figure available at the time of writing. Eddie calls it a "gross injustice" and wants a correction while his "pal," Hilbert J. (Kelly) Weller, secretary of the league, rallied to his side and says that Eddie's average now is 180.68253968 plus.

There's little I can do but beg Eddie's pardon. Do you think he'll forgive me as long as I overlook the 453 he rolled in the City Major league Tuesday night?

Glen Miller, Kaukauna, forwards a clipping from a Toronto newspaper pointing out that Phil Zwick, Kaukauna's globe-trotting leather thrower, and Dave Castilloux, who meet at Toronto next Monday, are two of the top featherweights in the world today. The bout is described as a championship elimination affair.

The article goes on to say that "Zwick has been fighting lightweights for so long that it will be a treat for him to get in with some one his own weight. It is not by choice that he hasn't been mingling with the fighters very often, but rather by reason of the fact that the managers of the leading 126-pounders aren't willing to let their boys in the ring with him."

"When Zwick was last in Toronto, efforts were made to match him with Joey Archibald, recognized in New York state as world champion, but Matchmaker Jack Corcoran met with a flat refusal from Archibald's manager."

"Comparing Dave Castilloux and Phil Zwick, both are taller than most featherweights and hit harder. Castilloux already has an official rating of third among the contenders of the world title... others in the top brackets aren't at all anxious to mingle with them."

Gathered from hither and thither: Appleton High school's second team has won 12 straight games. The team is coached by Myron Seims who piloted last year's reserves to a championship with but one defeat. Duke Ruppenthal, the pride of Tigerton and a pretty fair wrestling attraction, is tending bar at a Duck Creek tavern. "Recovering from an operation," the Duke says. Last Friday's game was the first Bob Bailey, sporting a broken nose, didn't start since he earned a varsity berth in 1937-38. Bill Burton is the "baby" of the Burton family and looks pretty good as a Blue and Orange regular. He's only a sophomore. Little Chute has a hockey team which is looking for games. Joe Van Thiel is the manager.

Yours truly,
Dick Davis.

Western Division
Hortonville at Winneconne.

Shiocton at Wrightstown.

HORTONVILLE travels to Winneconne Friday night for the feature game in Little Nine conference competition. The Winneconne quint has been showing steady improvement and won't overlook a chance to tie for the Western division lead. Hortonville has a record of six wins against two losses while Winneconne has five victories and three defeats. The game is considered a tossup because Winneconne will have the advantage of its home floor.

Freedom and Bear Creek will be battling for a chance to boost their league rating on the latter's floor while Shiocton is expected to have little trouble with Wrightstown but the latter will be showing before home fans and may pull an upset. Kimberly is favored to snare its ninth straight win in Eastern division play but may stub its toe on the Brillion floor. Anything can, and usually does, happen when these two teams get together. Denmark is expected to protect its second place spot at Hilbert while Seymour will have its hands full at Reedsville.

Blue Streaks Lose In Overtime Scrap

Sextet Bows to Marshfield, 3 to 1, After Grueling Game

Appleton Blue Streaks lost a 3 to 1 overtime hockey game to the strong Marshfield sextet in a battle at Jones park rink last night. Marshfield took a 1-goal lead in the first period and held it until Ole Luchterhand knotted the game in the final period. Marshfield came out on top in the 10-minute overtime.

The game was featured by hard checking and skating on each side and a free-for-all scrap was subdued before the fighting reached serious proportions. Chet Davis, a former Blue Streak player, took part last night and shone on defense. He will play with Appleton at the tournament in Wausau this weekend. A Babino, Ben Sepenski, and Red Bradford were other outstanding local players on the ice last night.

The Blue Streaks travel to Oshkosh tonight for a Fox River Valley league contest.

Sophomores Used as Illness Removes 3 Illinois Regulars

Champaign, Ill.—Doug Mills, University of Illinois basketball coach, turned to sophomores to bolster his Big Ten title contenders today as illness removed a third regular and the key man of the team—Lewis "Pick" Dehner.

Dehner, second high scorer of the conference, was stricken with tonsillitis yesterday. Earlier, Bill Hapac, forward and No. 4 scorer in the conference, had gone out with an attack of influenza. Last week Captain Bill Nisbet was lost through ineligibility.

Dr. L. M. T. Stilwell, team physician, offered a ray of hope when he said both Dehner, a center, and Hapac would be able to make the two-game road trip this week, but he added neither might be in condition to play for any length of time against Purdue or Michigan.

Redskins Score Upset In Overtime Struggle

Pittsburgh.—A long arched shot by Otto Kolar with 20 seconds left to play in an overtime period gave the Sheboygan Redskins a 38 to 37 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in a National Pro Basketball league game here last night.

The defeat was the first suffered by the Pirates in home territory since the first month of the season and snapped their home winning streak at eight games. Rube Laubschlaeger was high scorer for the Redskins with six baskets and two free throws. Ed Daneker and Kolar each contributed 12 points to the Sheboygan cause.

CAPE GETS JOB OF FILLING NOVAKOVSKI'S SHOES

To the lot of Wally Cape, right, falls the job of filling Albert Novakowski's shoes in remaining Lawrence college basketball games. Novakowski completed his athletic career at Lawrence with the close of the semester and, though he won most of his glory on the gridiron, he was one of the mainstays on the basketball court this season.

Wally, christened Wellington, was a letter winner last season but has been handicapped the early part of this year because of illness. Coach A. C. Denney is shown giving him a few pointers on shooting, something that Cape does with uncanny accuracy.

Two Appleton Youths Lose on Decisions in U. W. Tournament

MADISON.—Joe Louis, the Brown Bomber, has nothing on members of Johnny Walsh's University of Wisconsin boxing squad who traded punches last night for the right to enter the finals of the all-university tournament tomorrow night. There were three technical knockouts in the 12 bout card, which was witnessed by a crowd of 2,700.

However, the most spectacular fight of the evening did not end in K. O. fashion. Steve Chivaro, Madison, and Phil Prather, Eureka, Kas., swapped murderous punches in the 175 pound battle. Chivaro dropped his opponent early in the first round but Prather came back in strong fashion with a series of powerful right hooks in the final two rounds to almost duplicate Chivaro's feat. Chivaro was given the decision by a narrow margin.

Chesley Wins
Loren Chesley, of Lena, showed the finest form in his technical knockout of Al Martinec, of Milwaukee, in the 127 pound division. A 2-handed attack gave him the victory in 1:13 of the second round.

Woody Swannett, Wisconsin Rapids, 155 pounder scored over Ed Pas, of Milwaukee, a hardy battler who was game but could not cope with Swannett's scientific and hard hitting tactics, in 55 seconds of the second stanza.

Henry Strand, of Foskin, assured fans he still has his powerful right hand and after dropping his opponent, Robert Ellis, of Wisconsin Rapids, twice, was finally awarded the bout after 1:34 of the initial round.

The results:
120 pounds—Art Walsh, Janesville, won decision from Sidney Blinder.

Appleton: Bob Sachscha, Portage won decision from Martin Silverman, Oak Park, Ill.

127 pounds—Al Martinec, Milwaukee won decision from Elmer Vaeger, Sheboygan; Loren Chesley, Lena, won on technical knockout from Al Martinec, Milwaukee. Time 1:13 of second round.

135 pounds—Gene Rankin, Superior, won decision from Warren Jolymore, Superior; Jim Walsh, Janesville, won decision from Clay Hoggan, Oshkosh.

155 pounds—Woody Swannett, Wisconsin Rapids won on technical knockout over Ed Pas, Milwaukee. 55 second of the second round: Billy Roth, Milwaukee, won decision from Bob Carnes, Appleton.

Technical Knockout
165 pounds—Henry Strand, Poskin, won by technical knockout over Robert Ellis, Wisconsin Rapids, 1:34 of first round; Ray Krammer, Elkhart Lake, won decision from Melvin Nitz, Ripon.

175 pounds—Steve Chivaro, Madison, won decision from Phil Prather, Eureka, Kas.

Heavyweight—Verdane John, Wauwatosa, won decision from Dave Machtel, Madison.

Tomorrow's championship pairings will find the winners of the 120, 127, 135, 155, and 165 pound divisions meeting and Chivaro will battle Bill Marquardt of Two Rivers in the 175 pound title match. John will mix with Nick Lee, of Milwaukee, in the heavyweight championship.

Omar Crocker, 145 pound Aurora swinger, won his title without dropping a glove. There were no entries in that division.

3 Knockouts Stud Fond du Lac Card

Diamond Belt Champion Flattens Al Ulrich in Second Round

Fond du Lac.—Three knockouts featured the Y. M. C. A. Boxing club's fight card here last night.

Larry Chatman of Milwaukee, 175 pound diamond belt champion, kayoed Al Ulrich of St. Norbert college in the second round of a scheduled five round bout.

Cornelius Young, St. Norbert's CYO 185 pound champion, floored Theron McLain of Milwaukee 15 times before Referee Dauber Jaeger stopped the fight in the third round.

Jimmy Coyne, Fond du Lac, knocked out Al Plaskowski of Green Bay in one minute of the second round.

Savior Canadeo, CYO 145 pound champion, won a decision over Jimmy Pierce, Milwaukee, in the five round windup.

In other matches Hans Ahl, Oshkosh, outpointed Le Roy McAdams, Milwaukee; Johnny Francisco, Ripon college, beat Matt Hiholovich, Milwaukee; and Connie Schumperli, Milwaukee, defeated Billie Reed, Milwaukee.

St. Mary Cagers In Bid for Share Of Catholic Title

Hope to Avenge 20 to 18 Loss at Hands of St. John in Previous Clash

MENASHA.—St. Mary high school cagers will bid for a share of the Fox Valley Catholic conference title Friday night when St. John of Little Chute comes to St. Mary gymnasium. The St. John team has won five successive conference games while the Zephyrs have one defeat in five tilts. A victory for the Zephyrs will give them a share of the lead and a chance to tie for the title.

Following the St. John game, the Zephyrs have two games with the St. Norbert college high team remaining on their schedule. The Dutchmen will have games against St. Peter of Oshkosh team and St. Norbert.

The Zephyrs lost the first game to St. John by a 20 to 18 score after they had led by an 18 to 3 count in the first half. The members of the Zephyr squad have vowed to gain revenge for that defeat and would just as soon take a share of the conference title along with the victory.

Better Records

The Zephyrs have run up a better offensive and defensive record than the Little Chute team has. The Zephyrs defeated St. Mary of Oshkosh by scores of 27 to 15 and 31 to 14 while the Flying Dutchmen won 28 to 25 in an overtime game and 20 to 13.

The Zephyrs defeated St. Peter of Oshkosh twice, 25 to 19 and 29 to 16, while the Little Chute team won 31 to 13. The Dutchmen have scored a 24 to 18 victory over St. Norbert too. The Zephyrs have looked impressive in running up their last two victories in which they defeated both of the Oshkosh conference teams handily.

For the game Friday night Coach Marvin Miller probably will start his veteran lineup with Laux and Coenen at forwards, Prunuske at center and Resch and Picard at guards.

'Jug' Strokes 59 for Record

San Antonio, Texas.—(AP)—Natives who had stacked home-grown Texas talent against the field in the $5,000 Texas open, pulled their punches a trifle today in favor of the sensational goings-on of Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Boston.

The stooped veteran yesterday blistered Brackenridge park's wooded par 36-35-71 course in a mere 59 strokes—twelve under par in a warm-up round. He minced in 10 birdies, 1 eagle and 7 pars to crush the course record by five strokes and break all existing P. G. A. records for a par 71 course.

"I couldn't have played a single shot better than I did," gasped a McGspaden as he walked off the eighteenth green.

Prior to McSpaden's outburst the veteran Abe Espinosa of Chicago had stirred the rail-birds with a 63, one under the old course record. E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, the nonchalant Arkansas traveler, checked in with a 65 and Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., and Henry Ransom of Bryan, Texas, scored 67s.

Play starts today.

Lawrence Yearlings to Meet St. Norbert Frosh

EDWIN HERB tipped a 256 game and Joe Reynebeau a 640 series to top bowlers in the Industrial league at Arcade alleys last night as Wadhams Oil cracked a high game of 1,001 and the best team total of 2,878.

Herb followed with a 558 series, Lorenz and De Young each cracked 200 games as Woolen Mills won two from Power Co. It was the old jinx all over again, the "Power" keggers never having won a series from the Mills. Mike Sakallaris headed the losers with a 552 series.

Reynebeau joined games of 217, 237, and 195 for his sparkling series, and Buck pounded 226, Gossens 216, and Elk 206 as Wadhams Oil won two from Atlas Printers and chalked the second straight series. Arnold Meyer pounded a 648 series on games of 211, 237, and 200 and Gehm 203 for the Atlas team.

Ponds Kunitz cracked 204, 207, and 582 and Scims 230, Pond Sport won two from Tulle Press, paced by Jack Geer who had 544 and Merville who rolled 201.

Orville Strutz came through with a 220 game and 604 series. W. Strutz 202, 205, and Leasong 205 as Johnson Shoes took two from Fox River. For the losers, E. Wegner smashed 235 and 580 and S. Bauman 212.

Richard Nabbefeld bowled 206 and Vander Velden 203 as Atlas Embossers won two from Schlafers Supply, paced by McGee who had 477.

Orville Perrine cracked 502 to lead Al's Bar to a 3-game win over Leasong company. For the losers, Len Burhans rolled 504 and Rowan 205.

Kitzinger slammed 209, Steger 536, and Plank 205 as Dandy Rollers won two from Montgomery Ward. For the losers, Jim Iversen hit 537.

The Post-Crescent beat Appleton Coated two games, with Irvin Weiss smashing 201, 224, 232, and 637 and Ed Starnad 223 for the winners. W. Schmidt jolted 526 and T. Fisher 200 for the Coated keggers.

CHIN BACK

Keeping the chin pointed back of the ball and at the same time turning the body well to the left is not the easiest golf fundamental to learn but it is a requisite to good form. Bobby Jones is doing it extremely well in the above illustrations, with a smoothness, balance and dispatch that speaks a champion's form. To achieve this objective it is necessary, as Walter Hagen has so aptly phrased, "to let the body move freely underneath the head."

If you are one of the players who is forced to lunge forward with the stroke despite your efforts to stay in one place, recall Hagen's formula to mind. For one thing this mental pattern induces relaxation, one cannot think in terms of letting the body turn and keeping the head still for example if one keeps his neck muscles taut. This factor keeps the body's position in relation to the ball undisturbed and thereby increases the chances for a well hit shot. The reason the body should turn well to the left is to avoid any sloping up the arms as they come into the ball and follow through. Should the left hip block

10 Fighters Will Represent Appleton at Golden Gloves Ring Tourney at Green Bay

GREEN BAY, Wis.—Entry of 10 fighters from Tom Cahoe's "K. O. Club" of Appleton plus those of four more novices today boosted the total number of contestants to date for the Golden Gloves tournament opening next Monday night to 107.

Four open division battlers and six novices are listed on Cahoe's roster, including several veterans of previous tournaments here. Heading the group from Appleton are Marty Bridges and Charles Gerlach, both former novice champions here. They have been working out with Billy Borchert, now a pro battler, in Appleton. Bridges is in the 160 pound class and Gerlach is a 175 pounder. The other two regulars are Ray Wiese,

Neenah Keyed for Feature Struggle With Shawano '5'

Schwartz, other veterans of the squad, will be set to go, along with Harold Lahn and Vern Rosenow, who will probably complete the starting five.

Coach Cliff Dilts' variable tactics in starting his first five will keep Neenah guessing until the opening tip-off, but it is likely that Gottschalk will start at center with Schwesler at forward and Rosenow at guard, where they have been all year. Reed and Lahn are interchangeable at the other forward and guard positions.

A large crowd and a stiff test for the local aggregation. Add to that—it's game No. 13 for the Indians.

3 ON INJURED LIST

New London — Coach D. N. Stacy's high school basketball squad will be minus three veteran regulars when it meets West De Pere Friday evening on its home floor at the Washington High school gymnasium.

Stewart Hamberger, guard, is on crutches with a sprained ankle as the result of last Friday's game at Shawano and may not play again this season. It is doubtful whether Kenneth Braut will see action because he has been ill this week. The team will also be minus Gordon Melkietjohn who has been unable to play in the last several games. Huzzar of the reserve squad is having difficulty with an injured back.

Kenneth Ross and Dean Jeffers will alternate at Braut's forward position and Robert Navis and Kenneth Poppy will see action in Hamberger's position. Douglas Hoier forward, Wallace Hamberger, center, and Harold Poes, guard, will complete the lineup.

SEEK SIXTH WIN

Kaukauna — Intensive scrimmages with the second stringers have marked high school basketball practice this week as the cagers prepare to receive the Menasha Bluejays tomorrow evening in the high school gymnasium.

Last year Menasha won both games from Kaukauna, and if the Kaws win tomorrow they will turn the tables, as the Littlebears have already defeated the Bluejays at Menasha, 26 to 18. Games with Shawano next Friday and New London the week after on the enemy's courts conclude the conference season, following which the Kaws will compete in the Menasha district tournament.

Show Improvement

The Kaws are showing up well in practice this week and should take the Bluejays for their third conference win, compared to three defeats. With only two veterans back to begin the season Little has welded these sophomores and juniors into a five that has improved with each contest, and prospects for next year indicate that the Kaws will be a real title threat.

Tomorrow night Little will start Paul Koch and Don Bixel at forward, Bill Alger at center and Carl Giordano and Junior Swedberg at guard. The B team will meet in a 7 o'clock preliminary.

INVADE KAUKAUNA

Menasha — Certain that they at least will remain out of the conference cellar, the Menasha High school cagers will travel to Kaukauna Friday night in an endeavor to improve their Northeastern Wisconsin conference standing. The Jays gained a tie for fifth place along with West DePere.

The Jays have shown improvement in recent games but a victory could only be called an upset. The Kaws won the first tilt by a 25 to 18 score in a game in which the Menasha team just failed to click. The Jays have shown better against Shawano than the Kaukauna team did. Both failed to stop Reed, however.

Usual Lineups

The Kaws have won five games and lost three while the Jays have won two and lost six. Menasha defeated Clintonville by 27 to 12 and 39 to 27 while Kaukauna defeated the Clin's 33 to 16. Menasha lost a one-point decision to West DePere while Kaukauna defeated the Black Panthers 28 to 18 and 30 to 25. Kaukauna broke even in two games with New London while the Jays have lost a 33 to 22 decision to New London. Both teams have lost to Shawano and Neenah.

Coach N. A. Calder probably will stick with his usual lineup, putting Anderson and Landskron at forwards, Zelinski at center and Drucks and William Resch at guards. Adequate reserves still are a problem for the Menasha team.

The path the swing will naturally slow down and hit inefficiently. (Copyright, 1939)

MANAWA — Manawa cagers drilled hard this week to condition themselves for the Waupaca tilt Friday at the local gym. After two consecutive conference setbacks at the hands of Weyauwega and Marion, the Wolves are looking forward to a more enjoyable evening Friday.

They will encounter some strong competition in the Waupaca five, who will be out to avenge a defeat earlier in the season. The Wolves will have the odds in their favor, having downed Waupaca and also having the game played on the home court.

Both teams are in fine shape and a great battle is expected. Manawa will have to stop the county cagers to remain in the race for the conference championship. Kieth Gehrke, Manawa forward, will be ready for action if the ankle injury suffered 10 days ago continues to improve.

Weyauwega, tied for the conference lead with the Manawa squad, will travel to Amherst to engage in a contest with the cellar dwellers. Marion will meet the Iola quintet at the latter city. The Norskies have lost some very tough games this season and may stop the Purgolds championship march.

Lambeau on Warpath For Better Officiating

Green Bay — (G) — Coach Earl (Curly) Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers, before going to Chicago yesterday for the National Football league's annual meeting, declared he would campaign for better officiating in the pro circuit.

Lambeau said he would offer a plan including a physical examination for prospective officials as well as a quiz on rules and would seek higher wages for the whistle-blowers.

The Green Bay coach insisted after the playoff game for the league title in New York last December that poor officiating cost the Packers a chance to win.

Tigers Adopt New Policy for Wages

Experiment Is Intended To Inject Lost 'Color' Into Team

BY FELIX WOLD

Detroit — (G) — The Detroit Tigers, one of the most liberal major league baseball clubs when it comes to dishing out wages, have adopted a "play or else" policy for their hired hands.

It's strictly an experiment, revealed when the 1939 contracts were sent out, but the idea is that faded contracts may serve to restore the absent "color" to the team's performance. The management decided to take and give a few hints from the numerous drab days at Briggs stadium during 1938 and based the pay rates on last year's performances.

So far no holdout has announced himself, but if one does, General Manager Jack Zeiler has the answer all ready.

"If he wants more money, he can go out and show that he's entitled to more."

It's a major move in owner Walter O. Briggs' strategy for catching those New York Yankees and nailing up another American league pennant here. Briggs beat rival bidders for the west coast pitching sensation, young Freddie Hutchinson, acquired Pinky Higgins from the Boston Red Sox and reportedly, slugging Cleveland outfielder.

The newcomers, with Hank Greenberg's home run blasting and Charley Gehring's blanketing of the second base area, may bring back some of the lost color.

Little Nine Heads to Hold Winter Meeting

The winter meeting of Little Nine conference officials will be held at 6:30 this evening at Hotel Appleton. The meeting was postponed a week ago Wednesday because of inclement weather. Basketball, track, forensics, debate and music are among topics to be considered at the session.

Bernie Van Zealand paced the victors with a 530 series and a 192 game while Bob Schommer cracked a 201 game and 577 total for the losers.

COMMON SENSE CONSERVATION

By L. H. KINGSTON

Green Bay — Assemblyman Young of Oconto is introducing a bill to compel the conservation department to open fire lanes to deer hunters.

Mr. Youngs no doubt believes that his proposal, if it becomes a law, would be a favor to deer hunters, but in this he is certainly mistaken and sportsmen, conservationists and deer hunters themselves should oppose his bill.

Fire lanes are built into wild, remote and inaccessible regions for the sole purpose of controlling forest fires which, once started, would otherwise burn tremendous areas. We do not have to think back very far to remember when many of our northern counties were nothing but fire blackened wastes. Now all that has been changed and the acreage burned annually by forest fires is almost negligible all due to an efficient forest fire prevention system put in effect and maintained by the conservation department.

Remote and inaccessible regions are few enough these days and we all ought to want those we have left preserved. Many of our native birds and animals will live only in solitude and if we want to preserve these species we must maintain wild places for them to live in. Because they are hard for the average hunter to penetrate, these areas have always formed fine refuges for deer and especially bears. No matter how many deer were killed in an open season there were al-

Sutherland Gets Crying Towel Out of Moth Balls and Wails

BY JOHN CAMPBELL
Pittsburgh — Sad days lie ahead for the University of Pittsburgh's 1939 football team — not a ray of hope anywhere. Laments Pitt's head coach, Dr. John Buin (Jack) Sutherland.

"Just the other day I had a report on how many players are going to have for spring practice and I doubt that we will have a successful spring season," he said gloomily, adding:

"We are going to have a pretty tough time. Things are happening rapidly and I don't know what more is going to happen. We have nine games scheduled for next fall and how we are going to play them I don't know."

"A lot of people are going to leave the stadium on Saturdays at 5 o'clock wondering what is happening and what is going to happen. We are going to leave the stadium, those of us who go — very much discouraged. I can't find a way of hope from anybody. I have not a nice thing to say to this banquet."

Sutherland spoke last night to members of the Westmoreland county Pitt club at nearby Latrobe. The coach didn't discuss the latest Pitt move which put athletic policies under supervision of the Big Ten conference, but the banquet's toastmaster, Dr. H. A. McMurphy, remarked:

"We are being purged and are on our way to be in the Big Ten." Recent restrictions tightened athletic eligibility standards at Pitt and the Big Ten supervision move followed closely.

Sutherland will lose most of his 1938 first stringers, including three of his "dream backfield," Goldberg, Stebbins and Chickernoe. The lone backfield holdover is "Dandy Dick" Cassiano, who filled Goldberg's left half post last season.

Dog Will Respond
All dogs have a natural hunting instinct and, if patience is used in their training, almost any breed will show amazing ability in some type of work for which it has not been bred. Terriers will prove pretty fair at following a hare, hounds will scare up birds, collies will flush and retrieve, and many other dogs will do an all-around job for their masters which is not listed in their ordinary, routine accomplishments.

A dog which has learned to obey commands will help his master atfield in many ways. He may not

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood—Settin' Around (Re-public)—The picture, "Man of Conquest," now nearing completion in this biggest of independent studios, is aptly titled and, aptly themed. It deals with the life of Sam Huston, who risked everything on one bold flirtation with Dame Fortune. And that's exactly what Republic is doing in throwing overboard its policy of producing cheap entertainment meant for a quick pay market, and gambling a cool million in the hope of gaining "major" standing.

If "Man of Conquest" clicks, Republic moves up for a breath of that rarefied atmosphere that has been the exclusive property of the "Big Seven." If the picture flops, then Republic must be content to fall back to its old formula and its old second-rate position. No matter what the result may be, it's a dramatic bid for recognition.

lot on a diminutive motor scooter. Gall Patrick could compete with a Greek statue if it were a question of beauty—or if it were a question of temperature. At 62, Bill Farnum would still be my choice in a contest to pick the screen's handsomest man. Actor who best personifies sheer unadorned villainy: Noah Beery. There's a swagging dash about Richard Dix that none of our young hopefuls can quite emulate.

On the "Man of Conquest" set, Edward Ellis, as Andrew Jackson, lay dead, surrounded by a circle of awed, respectful mourners. For fifteen minutes before the cameras whirled, Director Nichols had been pleading first with this actor, then that, to get them into the death-chamber mood. And his efforts seemed successful, for the scene had great solemnity as it unfolded. But in this business it doesn't pay to count your scenes before they're fully hatched. Midway through the take, every man in the scene began to quake and quiver. Faces were crimson with the efforts to force back a laugh. Wearily perched squarely, contentedly and sedately on the very tip of the "dead man's nose." Still worse, the nose had wiggled.

I suppose this incident means less to you than to me—for you haven't spent twenty years on the Hollywood sidelines, listening to outmoded stars deliver soap-box harangues on the "decline of the acting art." Today, on the "Mexicali Rose" set, I was chatting with William Farnum, one of yesterday's greatest. "What is the most significant change in pictures in the past twenty years?" I asked. "That's very easy to answer," said Farnum frankly. "The one great improvement is the average quality of the acting. These kids today, make the old timers look like novices."

Best laugh on the Republic lot concerns the producer of the Gene Autry horse operas. The other day, with a new picture "in the can," he took his cost sheet to the front office and proudly called attention to the fact that he had stayed within his budget—"in the black," he said, pointing to the column of figures. "Then how come your last entry is in red ink?" demanded the big boss, skeptically. "That?" said the producer—"well, you see I ran out of black ink. If I'd bought a bottle I'd have been in the red!"

Smiley Burnette, having gained some fifty pounds in the past year, has just gone on a diet—and he's not too happy about it. "The thing I can't understand is why the doc makes me give up eating breakfast. That can't do me much good because breakfast is my lightest meal. I never eat much more than a stack of hot cakes, fruit, ham and eggs, and cereal!"

State Insurance Rates Called Too High and Too Low

Insurance Men Want Them Raised and City League Wants Reduction

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—A little known but widespread activity of the state government, sale of fire and tornado insurance to local governments, burst into the limelight this week as the result of attack from two directions.

While Assemblyman Melvin Schlyter of Shawano county, an insurance man, was introducing a bill in the legislature proposing to abolish the state insurance fund because it is in competition with private business, Wisconsin local governments as organized in the League of Wisconsin Municipalities issued a statement announcing that the organization is studying a plan to organize a mutual company because of dissatisfaction with the state system.

Schlyter, and other insurance men, feel that the rates of the state fund are too low. The League of Municipalities maintains that the rates are too high, and that insurance costs for cities and other local units could be cut through self-cover by means of a mutual company.

Started in 1903
The Wisconsin state fire insurance fund was created by an act of the legislature in 1903 for the purpose of insuring all state property to the amount of 90 per cent of its value at 60 per cent of the average rate charged by fire and tornado insurance companies licensed in the state. The result was a state fund rate of 50 per cent of the premium charged by the private concerns.

Twenty-five years ago the law was amended to include county, city, village, town, school district and library property under the same terms, except that the local units had the power to decide how much insurance was to be purchased.

Since the organization of the fund the total amount of premiums, interest, and profits has been about $5,500,000, while the losses, expenses, and loss on sale of bonds has been under $2,000,000. Today the balance in the fund is just under $4,000,000.

Assets of the fund include several hundred thousands of dollars in approved farm mortgages, more than $2,000,000 in municipal and other governmental bonds, the state office building, valued at almost $800,000, and the state orthopedic hospital, listed on the asset side of the ledger at $276,148.

Some of the criticism against the alleged high rates of the state system arise out of the fact that the loss ratio on all property insured throughout the entire life of the fund has averaged only about 27 per cent. With such a low loss percentage, according to the League, for example, the rates could well be reduced.

Backed By State
This argument, they claim, is additionally strong because the law provides that in the event that the state fire fund is insolvent the state treasurer shall pay losses out of the state general fund, which payments are to be reimbursed later by the insurance fund at the discretion of the insurance commission.

This provision was added to the law in 1903, after the state capitol had burned and drained the fund's assets. "Now that the state insurance fund is in a very sound financial condition, it is extremely doubtful if this provision of the law will ever again be called upon to assist in the adjustment of losses," H. J. Mortensen, commissioner of insurance, said recently.

In addition to all state owned property, the fund insures the property of 30 counties, 111 cities, villages and towns, 415 school districts, three sanatoria, and 12 libraries.

"The state fire insurance fund is founded on the principle that a properly operated state agency can furnish fire and tornado insurance to state governmental units at a greatly reduced cost by eliminating acquisition expenses, profits and certain types of overhead burdens incidental to a competitive regime, and this has been fully demonstrated," according to Mortensen.

Among the local units insured by the fund in the Appleton area are Calumet and Waupaca counties, the villages of Combined Locks, Coleman, Gresham, Reedsville, Scandinavia, and Winneconne, and townships and school districts in all the counties in that section.

Construction of Sidewalk Part of New Project Plan

Extension of Water Mains Also Included in Kaukauna Proposal

Kaukauna—The construction of 60,500 square feet of concrete sidewalk is one of ten provisions in the $139,000 WPA project approved by the council Tuesday. This project and one providing for the extension of water mains will be sent to Madison WPA authorities for approval. The completion of the projects would result in street improvements that are a necessary part of the city of Kaukauna, the recommendation of the board of public works. Lack of funds has prevented these improvements in the past. The assistance of the WPA will make them possible. No taxes or assessments will be levied for funds furnished by WPA, and no improvements will be made on streets where a substantial portion of the frontage is in the hands of real estate operators, it was brought out.

The complete list of work to be done under the $139,000 job, besides the concrete sidewalk, is 10,200 feet of concrete combined curb and gutter; 10,050 square yards of six inch concrete pavement; 8,800 square yards of three inch blacktop surfacing; 3,000 cubic yards of crushed stone surfacing; 10,350 cubic yards of street grading; 80,000 square yards of terrace improvement; production of 15,000 cubic yards of crushed stone; manufacture of 1,400 feet of 12 inch pipe, 1,350 feet of 15 inch pipe; 400 feet of 18 inch pipe; 400 feet of 24 inch pipe; construction of 3,500 feet of storm sewers with manholes, connections and other appurtenances; rebuilding of old manholes and catch basins.

$40,000 From City
The project's total cost is estimated at $139,000. Federal funds would amount to $83,446 for labor, $4,370 for supervision, and $11,079 for equipment, material and other non-labor costs. The city would contribute $3,000 for labor and $27,368 for equipment and material, or a total of $40,368 to the government's $98,895, or 29 per cent of the total cost.

The water main extension job includes 6,000 feet of water mains together with necessary house connections, gate valves, hydrants, corporation cocks, curb stops and tees, and other appurtenances. WPA will provide, if approved, $10,758 for labor, $603 for supervision, and $1,443 for material and equipment. The city's share would be $450 for labor, nothing for supervision and $7,283 for equipment and material. Thus the city would pay $7,743 to the government's $12,808, or 37 per cent of the total cost.
